

Dr. Brown

us: "If I had a teen age boy I would take him to a public school and say to him, 'Son, there would be no public schools if it were not for the church.' Then I would take him to the bank and explain something about the function of a bank in community life and tell him that the bank could not continue its service to the community if the church did not stand back of it giving the people the teachings of the Bible. I would take him to the court house and say something to him about the significance of our courts, and then I would assist that the courts could not function if the churches were removed from the community.

So I would continue with my boy visiting various enterprises and institutions, and in each case I would insist that no one of them could continue successfully without the church giving the teaching of Christ to the people who make up community life.

First, the church is the only institution in the world which is telling people how to be saved. Year in and year out, the church stands with a Bible in her hand saying, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Possibly it is kindergarten for me to even mention this central message of the church, but I insist that we need to remind ourselves continuously that there is no other organization or institution in society telling lost people continuously of a wonderful Saviour.

Second, the church of Jesus Christ is the only institution in the world which is telling people continuously how to live after they are saved. I am talking about character now—about the old-fashioned virtues of honesty, sobriety, and purity. The preacher in the pulpit may not be eloquent. He is not always a man of culture. But the preacher, whether in a church away back in the cove or in some magnificent building in a metropolitan center, is emphasizing all of the time that it is better to be sober than to be drunk, better to be honest than dishonest, better to be clean than to be impure. With the Bible in his hand he is saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it."

Third, the church of Jesus Christ is the only institution in the world which challenges every evil that starts toward my heart or my home. You may think of the church as narrow, as limited, but you will remember that it is true to her Master she will keep before us the great "shall not" of God.

Fourth, the church supports and carries on the most comprehensive program in the world. This program answers every human need—Orphanages, schools and colleges, hospitals and missions to the ends of the earth.

In closing, I suggest Dr. Brown insisted that the church of which a person is a member is the biggest thing that God would ever let him touch. He then made an appeal that people reappraise the church, that they attend her services, that ordered him to call no more at her home.

Massie, according to police, was lauding in Norma and since he had no friends hereabouts Miss White had invited him to her home on several occasions.

However, they said, Miss White had gone out with him only once and never had any serious intentions.

Boody asserted Massie had admitted he had intended killing Miss White then he was going to "shoot it out with you cops." Following that he was going to return to his former home at Hazelwood, N. C.

Miss White's father, Peter White, told police Massie had threatened to kill the young woman while the two were at work. Because of the threat, he said, her foreman, John Miller, had been escorting her home in his car.

They realize their money is more wisely invested in the church than anywhere else in the world—that they give the church the first place in their lives.

ered that the plaintiff recover judgment against the defendants for the possession of the lands involved in the case; adjoining the James Patton estate and others in Canton, and that L. B. Warren is now owner of the said premises and entitled to possession and that the defendants be removed from said premises.

The plaintiff was also to recover judgment against defendants and each of them and C. C. Rathbone, surety to pay $30 and costs of the court.

In the case of Grover C. Clark versus Henry Francis, involving a land sale, it was ordered that Penny Bros. of Charlotte be made additional party defendants to the action, and that plaintiff be authorized to amend his pleadings to include the new defendants and said amended complaint to be filed within the next 30 days.

In the damage suit of Joe Browning versus Joyce Warren, the case was decided in favor of the defendant and the plaintiff instead of receiving the $2500 damages asked was ordered to pay the costs of the action.

In the case of Gladys Cogburn Murray, Ruby Cogburn and Agnes Cogburn minors by the next best friend Marcel Murray, versus P. N. Cogburn, Glenn Cogburn and Austin Cogburn, involving the sale of lands of minors, the defendants

Hawk Takes Vacation From Training Program

RALEIGH—The training of the State Museum's hawk was resumed last week after a five-day vacation period.

Immediately after the public had been notified that this number one enemy of the chicken was being trained to hunt rabbits, the hawk cut the leash which held him and found freedom through an open museum window.

Wednesday morning, William Mims of 625 Devereux Street heard his young chickens "kicking up a fuss." He went out and found the hawk, lame and hungry, eating freed were ordered to make additional payments on lands.

The defendant in the case of Pearl Watson, versus W. R. Candler, doing business under the firm's name of W. P. Candler Transfer Company, involving damages, the defendant was ordered to pay $700 and the costs of the action.

In the case of J. B. Arrington, Jr., by his next best friend, J. B. Arrington, versus Earl Caldwell and Hyatt Messer, involving injuries to a minor, the defendants were ordered to pay the plaintiff's $275 damages and $50 to Dr. Chas. F. Owen and $50 to Grover C. Davis, attorney.

It was thought that court would not adjourn before sometime Wednesday as The Mountaineer went to press.

that had fallen out of the coop. A few telephone calls located the owner, Malcolm Edwards, museum employee, who never had any hope of seeing the hawk again.

Edwards explained that this Cooper's hawk, outlived by game authorities, did not return "to the hunt" because leather straps on his legs had become entangled, making his powerful talons virtually useless.

Careful driving is being stressed in connection with safety on the highways, but some words should be said about careless walking.

It is worth noting that National Bible Week comes in October but this does not mean that you can't read your Bible this month.

of the Hazelwood elementary school, in charge of the hospitality committee. Pages for the meeting are Julia Stovall, Mary Carolyn Love, Carolyn Anne Bischoff and Judith Anne Davis.

Mrs. Luther, who is serving her second term as district director states that district number one was honored at the last state convention, when it was awarded the Aycock cup for having had the largest increase in membership of any P. T. A. district in the state. Last year 12,372 members were present at the convention held in the Red Oak Hotel, Valdese, N. C. The previous year the total membership was 11,000. The increase in the membership of the district was 1,372 members.
