

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa
I am a girl of 23 and am in love with a man of 22. I have a little boy 3 years old and I have been married before. My husband was with me for 2 years.

The man loves my boy but it is strange to understand. Once he tells you he loves you and then he turns around and says "I love you" though I love him but what should I do?

Sincerely,
VERA Hope, R. C.

Answer:
The man you are going with is not definitely made up his mind as to whether or not he wishes to marry you. It is not love him enough to put up with his disposition if may be that he will behave better after he gets settled down and definitely comes to a decision. But dealing with a temperamental man is as hard as having a child who has tantrums. You will have to love him a lot to put up with him.

LOUISA

Dear Louisa:
I am 19 years old and my husband is twenty-one. We have been married one year and now separated. We have broken up five times as we couldn't find happiness together and when we were apart we missed each other.

I have no family and am living with a girl friend. My husband tells me he loves me and I do love him. Since our marriage I have lost most of my love for him as he was cruel and beat me up when he got drunk. He always runs to his mother, who dislikes me because she feels I took her away from her when he was too young.

His whole family is no good. His father stays in jail most of the time.

We tried living in another city but he came home to see his mother and never came back.

I've done all I know to make a success of marriage but now I don't know where to turn. He took all of my things, even my rings. His mother's doing.

Not having him much, being separated so many times, should I try again. I want to get a divorce as my church doesn't approve.

Conn.

Answer:
I always believe in doing everything possible to make marriage a success before giving up, but unless you can get your husband to go far away from his family with you, and stop drinking, I can't

IN 1,000-MILE RACE WITH DEATH

STRICKEN with an inoperable brain tumor, Mary Rose, 3, of Grand Falls, Newcombland, was rushed to her father in Boston, 1,000 miles away, where she was operated on. The operation unsuccessful, the child was given one week to live and was rushed home again on a transatlantic plane, which made a special stop at Canton for her. Mrs. Leo Rose, who became a mother again recently, cries at the wan figure of her dying daughter. The latter bought her some. (International Soundphoto)

North is South
Metematically speaking, mariners throughout the centuries who have set a northward course by heading where the compass needle points have really been traveling "south," according to Ships magazine. The compass needle is a magnet; so is the earth. In magnetic forces, opposite poles attract. Thus the earth's pole which attracts the north-seeking end of the needle is actually a south pole. We started calling it the north magnetic pole simply because it happened to be near the globe's geographic north.
