

The idea that taxes can be reduced while the Federal Government continues to pay for local improvements and finance the recent war is far-fetched, to say the least.

Governor Cherry Proclaims Week To Honor Press

Today through October 8th will be observed as Newspaper Week in North Carolina, as proclaimed by Governor Cherry "in the hope that such action will revive the thinking of the public concerning this institution—the free press of our state and nation—which is the product of the Constitution and the servant of the public."

Newspaper Week will be observed throughout the nation between October 1-8. The Governor's proclamation states as follows:

"The newspapers of our state comprise leading institutions in the several communities in which they operate.

"Perpetuation of the peace we have only so recently won is in a large measure the responsibility of the press together with other institutions.

"October 1 to October 8 has been designated as National Newspaper Week in the United States.

"Now, therefore, I do hereby proclaim Newspaper Week in North Carolina for those same dates, in the hope that such action will revive the thinking of the public concerning this institution—the free press of our state and nation—which is the product of the Constitution and the servant of the public."

Auto Output Lower Owing To Strikes

DETROIT—Passenger car and truck production in the United States and Canada this week will total 81,162 units, according to Ward's Automotive Reports, comparing with last week's revised total of 88,888.

Assemblies for the corresponding week a year ago numbered 10,570 and for the week ended Sept. 20, 1941, aggregated 60,615 units.

Ward's said that but for the strike that affected Chrysler and Packard production this week's output probably would have established a new postwar mark. It added that wire for seat cushion springs again is in critically scarce supply and that pig iron, copper and lead also continue to handicap production by their scarcity.

QUESTION: What about the nitrogen situation for next year?

ANSWER: According to the latest reports, the total U. S. Supply of nitrogen will be just about the same for the 1946-47 season as for the past year, if production goals are met. There will probably be less sulphate of ammonia, slightly more nitrogen solutions, and an increase in ammonium nitrate. Imports of nitrogen from Chile will be about the same, while imports from Canada will be smaller. Last year the nitrogen industry, in spite of many difficulties, exceeded its 1945-46 production goal by 26,000 tons. The total amount of nitrogen for U. S. agriculture and its possessions was 725,000 tons, according to the American Plant Food Council.

QUESTION: What is the best type of livestock farming on rolling lands?

ANSWER: That's a mighty difficult question to answer. The amount of labor available, markets, and efficiency with which the farm is operated are important factors in success. The Farm Management Department at State College has just made a special study of 162 farms in the TVA area of Western North Carolina, and here's what it says: "Beef cattle farms had a large business. Dairy farms had the highest labor income, per cent return on investment, and labor earnings. Poultry farms were almost as profitable as dairy farms. Beef cattle farms made the least money, while the general farms made only slightly higher returns. Before a shift in type of farming is made, results for several years should be studied."

State Prepared For 4,000 Enrollment But 4,825 Arrived

A total of 4,825 students have registered at State College, and indications are the figure might reach 5,000 with late sign-ups, college officials said.

Classes began last week for an all-time record number of students. The college administration had "prepared" for an enrollment of 4,000 and said earlier that any number above that figure "would be too many."

WHY BLACK MARKET IN MEAT TURNED BEARISH

PHILLIPSBURG, Colo.—A wily, 300-pound brown bear was captured and executed after he had cut local meat supplies by killing several steers on the Jeeter ranch and the manner of his capture is one for the tall tales department. John Hart, assistant director of the State Game and Fish Department, said the marauder not only was so smart that he evaded traps set in the ordinary way but on some occasions he even seemed to have sprung the traps deliberately by shoving steers into them. Finally, all the cattle were removed from the ranch, the traps were smeared with honey and Bruin's sweettooth betrayed him.

School Benefits Of G. I. Bill Drop After Oct. 6

Young men eligible to be drafted in the next few weeks will be interested in a Federal provision that those who enter the service after October 6 will not have as much educational benefits under the G. I. Bill as those who join prior to that time.

A bulletin received at the Draft Board office explains that after Sunday, October 6, those who begin duty with the armed forces accumulate the right to schooling with government aid financially on a month-for-month basis. For each month in the service, they may draw a month of subsistence allowance from the government.

The present ruling under the G. I. Bill grants eligibility for a year of schooling after three months of service, after which time accumulates on a month-for-month basis.
