fullness and color, and the Delphiniums looked like the peak of their July blooming, and the pansies gave the appearance of a bowl picked in May. There must be some secrets about how these were kept and in such perfect condition.

There was much more to the exhibits than what the eye might see—for they gave one a lot to think about. One realized that Haywood farm women have worked right beside their men and together they are building the finest type of life in America today. Underneath the artistry of the exhibits, perhaps one of the biggest things was the appreciation of food values which are and will continue to aid our health in this county. Booth after booth had illustrations of the seven basic foods which showed that the women are no longer merely serving meals here in Haywood. They are going about their job intelligently.

We hope the rest of you who saw the exhibits got as big a thrill out of them as we did—and that you went home, as we with a new feeling about our job as homemakers. For after all that is the real purpose of the show to learn a better way by showing what can be done.

No story, however brief would be complete about what our Haywood women and girls are doing on the home fronts without paying our respects to our county home agents, who are leading and aiding our women to a larger vision of their job. And to the home economic teachers in our schools who are teaching our girls new and better ways to do old things.

No nation has greater respect for force than Russia; what else explains the pact with Hitler before the war?

Child Care Tip
 Here's a solution to the old problem of keeping a youngster covered at night. Sew two of his largest crib blankets together on both sides and at one end, forming a sleeping bag. Tuck baby in the bag first, then put on the other covers. If he kicks all the covers, he still has the protection of his sleeping bag.

There are many things wrong with the world but space is not available to explain them now.

We do not have to have war with the Soviet Union over an economic difference but it might help.

One reason why so much of the world is not Christianized is that there is confusion among the Christians.
