AP Newsfeatures

Dear Judge,

All the heps are busy like mad making with the needle and thread. There has been lots of interest in little remnant stores where pieces of material can be picked up for scarfs, handkerchiefs, patch quilts, aprons and bandanas—for Christmas presents.

Jo-Ann Little of Cathedral High School in New York is making the cutest little animals—scotty dogs, etc.—out of wool and wire. She says directions are easy to get in art stores.

Some of the kids bought some plain string gloves and mittens and embroidered 'em with flowers or with initials at the cuff of the glove.

If you really feel in a sewing mood, hand-rolled handkerchiefs are tip-mast presents for the hepherd. First try to find some real Irish linen. If you can't, you can find squares of various printed cottons in the remnant or department stores.

Almost every city has a shop that sells old camera cases with shoulder straps (Civil or World War). Usually you can pick them up for about 10 to 50 cents. The leather looks a little worn and may even be paint spotted but you can fix 'em up and make slick gifts. First use some turpentine to clean off any paint. Then use castor oil to give life to the leather. After that use a regular leather polish or automobile polish to finish the job.

Since all the slick chicks are going ga-ga over insignia—the big brass kind—any kid would appreciate a Christmas gift of the fancy hardware that she can attach to her belt, bag or hat. The way to find unusual brass insignia is to visit the old costume shops in your neighborhood and try to get insignia that might be attached to old police or fireman hats or war uniforms—foreign and American. Then use a good jewelry polish and clean 'em up spick and span. New York deb-heps have gone so crab-happy that they even snatch the waiters' badges at the Stork Club.

Have you seen skating socks sprinkled with sequins? Well they really are news and make a truly Yoolie gift. Get a solid color sock and a batch of sequins in different colors that will harmonize with the color you choose. If you have red socks you would then get green, yellow gold and red sequins. If the socks are lisle, so much the better, sew a row of yellow, row of green, row of yellow gold, etc. down the lisle.

Bye Now,

Vivian

Shadows on Mountain Determines Time

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Lofty Mt. San Jacinto, 11,000 feet above sea level, casts an afternoon shadow over this desert community so the City Council has passed an ordinance establishing daylight saving time, effective Nov. 17. The council adopted the measure last night. The sun goes down at 3 p. m. during the winter months because of the mountain's shadow, but the ordinance will save one hour's sunlight. The new "sun time" will be effective for 120 days.

Turkeys Delay Prisoners Pardon

ST. PAUL — The state pardon board granted John P. Wallerius, fifty-seven-year-old convict a pardon, but at the request of prison officials made it effective Dec. 6, a week after Thanksgiving. The officials said he was a "key" man on the turkey farm.
