

Mosquito Eradication Campaign Is Planned

Asserting that now is the time to begin work on mosquito control rather than waiting until the breeding season begins, Miss S. A. Jones, Chamber of Commerce secretary, is asking the cooperation of nearby communities to lay plans for getting rid of this pest.

To emphasize the fact that Waynesville and the surrounding area still is concerned with mosquitoes—even in late November—Miss Jones brought a live one, caught in town, to the Department Health Board office Friday morning. The mosquitoes are so bad now, she asserts, that it isn't possible for people to sit on their porch in some parts of town.

After following this up by a talk with G. C. Ferguson, town manager, Miss Jones announced the intention of calling a special meeting here in early December. The mayor and aldermen of Waynesville, Hazelwood and Clyde; Dr. Frank S. Love, superintendent of the Lake Junaluska Assembly, and other civic leaders here will be sent invitations to attend. Dr. Mary B. H. Michal, district health officer, and R. W. Livingstone, district sanitarian, have agreed to discuss the situation and make recommendations.

It is hoped that the meeting will result in local ordinances being passed in each community to require that puddles, empty cans and other holders of stagnant water be drained. The ordinances, if passed, would be followed by a campaign to get the work done and remedy the situation as soon as possible.
