The Everyday Counselor

—by—
 REV. HERBERT SPAUGH, D. D.

Most discourtesy is due to thoughtlessness, yet all of us are guilty of it at times. This was vividly impressed on me when I recently saw a film produced by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company called, "Telephone Courtesy." While this film related chiefly to telephone courtesy in business offices, yet it has a wider usefulness than that. It demonstrates how a business house can lose customers by the discourtesy and thoughtlessness of its employees towards their customers. I heard several business men say when the picture was flashed showing some common telephone discourtesy, "Yes, that's happened in my office, and I have even been guilty myself."

 "The telephone is one of our finest modern conveniences, yet many of us by thoughtlessness allow it to become a source of irritation, and we often make ourselves appear to others in a ridiculous light. I frequently saw myself in this film, and with others laughed at the actions of the performers. I thought how ridiculous I must have appeared myself under similar circumstances."
 "Courtesy is one of the finest means of improving human relations, yet so many of us forget this when we pick up a telephone receiver, or climb behind the wheel of an automobile."
 "If we are going to make the greatest use of our telephones, we must learn to use them wisely and with consideration. To pick up a telephone receiver when the bell rings and answer, "Hello," and say nothing more is absurd. It is not only courteous but also time-saving to identify ourselves and also our telephone either by number or by name. Then we should ask if it is convenient for us to talk with the person called. We should ask if we are interrupting a conference; if it is convenient for us to talk with the person called, or if they would prefer to call us back. If this can be done in a few minutes, we then should stay near the telephone and await the call.

 We should put as much courtesy and consideration into a telephone call, as in a personal visit or conference. It is easier on the disposition, the nerves, may save friendship and even money.
 "The Golden Rule has excellent application in our use of the telephone. Too many of us leave it in the Bible, while it ought to be taken out and put to use."

Paul Admonishes the Churches

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
 (The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Dec. 8 is I Cor. 6:9a-10; 11:17-27; Romans 14:13-14; Eph. 5:18-21, the Memory Verse being Psalm 27:11, "Teach me Thy way, Jehovah.")

PAUL, IN founding churches in different parts of the then known world, kept in touch with them all his life, and frequently wrote to them letters of affection, and sometimes of reproach when he heard that things were not going well with them.
 Just as today, people in Paul's time would join the church, profess the doctrine Paul set forth, but fail to live the type of life that could in any sense be called moral. They fought, or at least disagreed, among themselves (as do many church members today, sad to say). Their private lives were anything but Christian, and even the observation of the Lord's supper gave them the excuse for drunkenness and other sins.
 Advice and counsel were badly needed, and Paul gave it through his letters, lovingly, but often sternly, too, when he felt occasion demanded. His first epistle to the Corinthians is thought to have been written in A. D. 53. He says, "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."
 If you would happily inherit this kingdom, you must live a life of righteousness. Even children can understand that they must not cheat, in school nor on the playground. They must be kind to one another, honest, not envious.

Men have been known to give generously to the support of one of Christ's churches, and demand excessive interest when they lend money even to poor folk of their own congregation. This is not Christian conduct; it is what is meant by an "extortioner."
Church Is Reproved
 In the 11th chapter of this same letter he evidently refers to reports of the conduct of the church that is far from pleasing, and he reproves them. "When ye come together in the church I hear that there is division among you; and I partly believe it."
 When they were together in one place, he writes, "this is not to eat the Lord's supper. For in eating every one taketh before other his own supper; and one is hungry, and another is drunken." They were evidently divided into cliques, each group of a certain "set" eating together, and taking no notice of those who were not in their group, even if they went hungry. Also some drank too much and became drunk. "What shall I say unto you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not."

 The sacrament which Paul taught to these disciples he had from the Lord Jesus Christ, he wrote. "That the Lord Jesus the same night in which He was betrayed took bread: And when He had given thanks, He brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is My body, which is broken for you: do this in remembrance of Me."
 "After the same manner He took the cup, when He had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in My blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of Me."
 Remembering this scene on the last night of Jesus' life on earth, the sadness with which He spoke, knowing that on the morrow He would suffer the agony of death, and wishing to be remembered by these who had shared the last years of His life on earth. How could one partake of this sacrament in lightness of heart, or even worse, with selfishness, rudeness and drunkenness?

Guiltily of Lord's Blood
 "Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord." This refers to the way in which ancient covenants were ratified in the East. "A victim was slain and the blood sprinkled upon the contracting parties, by which they were solemnly bound to their mutual engagements," as referred to in Exodus.
 The letter to the Romans was written not much later than Corinthians, and in this letter Paul writes, "Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness; not in strife and envying. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfil the lusts thereof."
 As a prisoner in Rome Paul wrote to the Ephesians, again reminding them not to be drunk with wine, "but be filled with the Spirit; speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord."
 We are told that in the early church, responsive hymn singing was used. Today Christians sing hymns together in church, and nothing is more helpful in putting one in the mood for worship and praise. Making such harmony together promotes harmony of spirit.
