

Doctors Do Not Favor New School

Poll Of Medical Society Backs Most Of Good Health Program

GREENSBORO—AP.—A majority of North Carolina physicians favor the basic points of the proposed good health program with the exception of a new four-year medical school at the University of North Carolina, a secret poll of the "fact finding committee" of physicians showed Monday.

More than half of the members of the State Medical Society answered questionnaires sent by a self-appointed group, with Dr. Elias Faison of Charlotte as chairman.

Of the doctors replying, 781 said they did not think another medical school for whites is now needed in North Carolina; 418 said they think one is needed. Asked where such a school should be located, if not at Chapel Hill, Charlotte received 642 votes, Asheville 80, Greensboro 72, Raleigh 43, and Wilmington 24.

All other points of the program were favored.
