U. N. Studies Ways To Open Channels Of World News

AP Newsfeatures Writer

After months of work and discussion the United Nations has hammered out plans for the first International Conference on Freedom of Information and the Press to start in Geneva, March 23, 1948 -a parley which could play a vital role in furthering world peace

Before U.N.'s Economic and Social Council adopted the four basic principles of freedom of information as a working basis for the conference, months of hard work and days of hot discussion revealed sharp cleavage between the points of view (1) of the United States and the United Kingdom, where newspapers are privately owned and (2) of the Soviet Union where newspapers are the organs of the erament, trade unions or coopera- Garner's friend really put his foot

"Merely to proclaim the principle of freedom of the press does not in itself give this freedom to the people, unless large sections of the population and their organizations have at their disposal the material resources without which freedom of the press cannot be made a practical

"Everybody knows that, since a newspaper, if it is to survive, requires the investment of vast funds which are not posessed by the bulk of the population, the freedom of the press proclaimed in constitutions becomes in actual fact the privilege of a few newspaper owners, publishing houses and telegraph agencies."

In opposing the terms of the Soviet-proposed agenda, Leroy D.

"The Soviet proposal approaches the problem in reverse order. It is against something and not for something. Calling of a World Conference on freedom of the press is for something-for freedom."

The opposition of the Canadian delegation was summed up in these

"The basic function of the press . . , in the opinion of the Canadian people . . . is to tell the truth . . . We . . . believe that to say that the object of the press is not to tell the truth. but to promote democracy or to promote any other set of values, however good, is mistaken in philosophy and profoundly dangerous in practice."
