Three Points Are Given Dairymen In Spring Planning

Three steps taken at this time of the year on dairy farms will boost milk production on a more economical basis, states Wayne Corpening, county agent. This is the time to "feed" pastures in order for them to pay off in the milk bucket, he says. "We all know that lime and phosphate are necessary in making a good pasture, so if your pastureland has not been limed and phosphated recently it will pay you to do this now. In many cases it will pay off to use a complete fertilizer on your pasture, as sometimes a little nitrogen is beneficial to the grasses and legumes in getting an early growth; also, many of our pastures need more potash."

After fertilizing the pasture, it is then a good practice to reseed it with Ladino clover and alta fescue or orchard grass. The recommended mixture is 2 pounds of clover and 12 pounds of fescue or grass seed per acre. "We still need better production bred cows in Haywood county," the county agent states. Through the county cooperative breeding association, dairy cows can be bred to registered proven bulls—Guernsey, Jersey or Holstein—for only $5.50.
