NEW FLORAL DESIGNS GREET EASTER SEASON

Perfect symbol of the dewy freshness of Easter morn, bonnets of fresh flowers will appear in greater number and variety than ever in this year's Easter Parade. Shown above is one of the newest designs created by chief stylist Alyn Wayne of Florists' Telegraph Delivery, using feathered carnations, blue iris and a bit of tulle. Below, the fragile calla lily becomes a durable costume highlight through a new waxing process which permits severely classic corsage designs like this. At right, flowers for the Easter breakfast table gain added interest when "bunny" is made welcome by a novelty container fashioned from cabbage-and-carrot rabbit food. This holds a tasteful display of yellow jonquils, stock and pussy willow.
