

Typical Dad Makes Suggestions On How To Celebrate Father's Day

Dear Family: At first I thought a Communist spy plot was cooking around the house, the way you have all been whispering and scuttling around. Now I've remembered Father's Day is in the offing.

I'm going to adore the neckties. I'll douse myself with the after-shave lotion. I'll wear the tie clasp at least once. I'll certainly use the cuff balls. And I'll probably tear up this letter and you'll never see it.

This is strictly dream stuff. But I'd like Father's Day to be a sort of New Year's event. I love the presents you're all going to buy out of your own allowances, I hope, but if I had my way, you'd shower me with lists of resolutions to be kept through the year, for I'll put the list, in my safe deposit box, for a solid year.

I'm starting with some suggested resolutions for your mother, kids, and I'm going to give her a going over first only because she's joint head of the house and it's more polite that way—the way you always give the guest of honor first.

Not to look my gift horses in the mouth, some things like the following would make every day Father's Day:

1. Razor blades, if used to flip lines cut linoleum or sharpen pencils, will not be replaced in the razor.
2. My new sweater should remain my exclusive property. But if it is borrowed, it will not be left in the school locker for more than overnight.
3. All and any damage to the automobile, including ripped fenders, will be reported to me, and not quietly repaired with funds saved from the food budget that month of meat-loaf last winter didn't fool anybody.
4. If Nancy insists on sitting with the neighbors' children, the neighborhood parents and not me, be required to escort her.

5. Playing of Be-bop records will be limited to two hours daily, preferably during daylight hours, with no repeats under a half-hour apart.
6. The bathroom shower rack will be reserved at all times for the shower curtain, not female unmentionables and silk stockings.
7. My old cabardine gold pants will not be sent to the cleaner's without consulting me, nor will they be locked in a trunk in the attic. The same applies to my old woolen bathrobe which has been a good friend all through my married life.
8. The lawn mower will be oiled semi-monthly or Jack will forfeit his mowing money.
9. Afternoon bridge sessions will be terminated 15 minutes before my scheduled time to arrive home and dinner, those nights won't be left over salad and par-fait.
10. Steak and french fries will be borrowed at least once a week.
11. Parties given by Nancy or Jack for their friends will be arranged at least 24 hours in advance, or at least long enough for me to make plans to play poker with the boys.
12. Socks in my bureau will have no holes in them, shirts will have their full complement of buttons, or they won't be in the drawer.
13. There will be an oversupply of bath towels in the bathroom at all times, and guest towels will be out only when there are guests actually in the house.
14. And if my tuxedo must be borrowed by Jack, SOMEONE will see that as the shirt is sent to the laundry and the studs and links are returned to that little black box in the right-hand top drawer.

A Big Scoop and a County Editor's Dream Comes True

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
United Press Staff Correspondent

NORTON, Va. (UP)—A weekly newspaper scored a resounding beat on one of the biggest news-stories of 1948 in Virginia. It printed an account of a $45,000 bank robbery, the chase and arrest of the bandits within two hours after it happened. The subscribers of the Norton Coalfield Progress, a modest but growing "country weekly," were reading about the bank robbery before many of the large newspapers and radio stations in the area knew it had happened. It wasn't one of those stories that happens right in front of the newspaper, either. The bank was robbed in Pound, Va., 20 miles to the north over rugged mountain roads.

At one of the bandits and wounded him on the bank steps. The two leaped into a car driven by another man and drove off.

Hold Those Presses! As Tate finished talking to Barr, state troopers brought in the three men for Barr to identify them. The money was recovered.

Tate sped back to Norton, wrote his story and soon the presses of the weekly rolled with a red-hot story and a banner-line on the front page.

"Big-town newspapermen will call it luck, but it was the biggest thrill of my life getting that story," says Tate, who will become owner of the Coalfield Progress next January.

And since, Governor William Tuck of Virginia has dedicated a new plant of the Coalfield Progress.

Not Much News

It was shortly after noon in Norton on the day that the Coalfield Progress was to go to press. The paper had been made up with accounts of meetings and society items laboriously gathered from the clubs and churches and PTA through the week.

Carroll Tate, a lanky, dark-haired young man who calls himself "general flunky" for the paper and who is its reporter and business manager, was relaxing in the office.

A pressman, just returning from lunch, walked in and remarked casually:

"We'd better throw out the front page."

Then he added, still casually, "The bank's been robbed at Pound."

Goes Into Action Tate jumped to life. He telephoned Pound and confirmed what the pressman had heard a state trooper remark to passersby on the corner.

Tate drove the 20 miles to Pound in a hurry over the winding roads. He interviewed Ed Barr, the bank cashier, who had been ordered into a vault by two armed men who neglected to close the vault door tightly enough to make it click.

Barr said he got out of the vault and shouted an alarm. He fired a

Soviets Build Berlin Monument To Soldiers

BERLIN—(AP)—Red marble and stone from the chancellery Hitler built are being used to construct a big memorial to Soviet soldiers who fell in the Battle for Berlin. The U.S.S.R. is the only one of the victorious Allied powers to erect such a monument here. Construction work on the memorial in the Treptower park of Berlin is already well underway. It is expected to cost ten million marks before its completion by the end of this year.

Every Queen Has Her Day In Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—This is really the city for royalty—the beauty contest type of blue bloods.

If there's any place that chooses more "queens" it hasn't been heard from.

"Maid of Cotton, Cotton Carnival Queen, Miss City Beautiful, Miss Dixie Belle, Miss Fire Prevention (or just "Miss Flame Girl" if you're second best) and Delta Bowl Queen" are some.

There's "Miss Navy" for the naval base nearby and "Miss Cinderella"—one of the many "Misses" and "Princesses" connected with the annual carnival.
