Cool-Headed Girls Hit The Sun

By BETTY CLARKE

AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor. If you want to keep cool this summer wear a hat.

Many a vacation or weekend has been spoiled by headaches and eyestrain due to sun and glare.

A batch of smart looking, eye-catching head coverings for beach, golf, course, motoring and plain every day spectator sports, have been dreamed up by milliners. Besides being pretty and flattering, they are practical and will protect your head, hair and eyes from wind and sun.

You can take your choice of a number of handsome beach hats. One wide-brimmed dramatic rough straw is trimmed with iridescent pearl shells, ties under the chin to defy the breeze. A four-cornered envelope beret with matching bag of straw cloth has been hit by the Hawaiian influence—a shaggy straw trim.

For motoring, a hat with a sunshade brim has a scarf which ties casually around the neck.

A pale pastel visor beret is adaptable for active or spectator sports.

FOR A MOTOR TRIP... Ideal for travel is this dark green silk jersey hat with brimmed eye shade. Scarf keeps it anchored to your head, protects coiffure from breezes.

PLAYTOPPER... Wear it at a tennis match or baseball game or a dress-up afternoon. This visor beret in pastel shades will protect your head and eyes from heat and glare.

DRAMATIC DUET... Wide-brimmed hat of rough straw (left) trimmed with iridescent pearl shells. Its coolie brim provides ample shade from glare. Designed by Dache. (R) Hat and bag ensemble of straw cloth for beach or cabana.

PLAYTOPPER... Wear it at a tennis match or baseball game or a dress-up afternoon. This visor beret in pastel shades will protect your head and eyes from heat and glare.

Stealing Cars Proves Futile In Most Cases

There is more to finding and recovering stolen cars than the average person might think. It is not so simple as just going out on the highway and having the luck of running into the stolen car coming around the first curve.

Last week two of Haywood's patrolmen solved the case of two stolen cars. Both cars were stolen in Asheville, yet were from Haywood, and the cases were solved in this county.

Cpl. E. W. Jones, and O. R. Roberts of the highway patrol did some smooth detective work, which boiled down to keeping their eyes open, ears to the ground, and consistently on the job. Both uncovered vital information, and when they got together with their facts, they went straight to the suspect, and once he was confronted with the evidence, admitted taking two cars.

The first car was a 1948 Mercury. When the car was recovered, Cpl. Jones had fingerprints made by Officer Moore of the Canton police department. Those fingerprints were used against the suspect, who later admitted taking the car, but never driving it home. Instead he would park it some distance from his house and walk the remainder of the way.

Last January an automobile owned by Howard Clapp was taken from an Asheville parking lot. The car was later found in a Greensboro garage, where it had been taken after being in a wreck. During the two-month interval that the car was in use, the 16-year-old boy had driven it over 8,000 miles. During the 8 days he had the Mercury he covered 849 miles, which proved he did not stay in one place long at a time.

The officers pooled all their facts together, and within a matter of minutes the suspect had admitted to everything.

Of course there is a lot that is not told here—for instance how they went about getting some clues, and how they were used. That is an officer's secret. The part that makes news is that it is only in very remote cases these days that a person can steal an automobile and get away with it for a very long period. Sooner or later, he will be face to face with a questioning officer.

The amazing thing, and this is no secret, the average highway patrolman can tell the make and model of almost every car driven in this territory. And in case you are interested, they already have the license number of many, many motorists whom they suspect as traffic violators.

Scatter rugs on polished floors are one of the danger spots in the home. Rug-Anchor or rug underlay will help prevent falls caused by the slipping of small rugs. It is made of sponge rubber, it clings to the most highly polished floor, thus holding the lightest scatter rug firmly in place. Its cushion effect lessens wear, and rugs last longer because the rubber underlay prevents soil and dirt from penetrating the back of the rug. It has another advantage too, it will not harbor moths.

If Rug-Anchor becomes soiled or coated with wax from floors, it is easily cleaned by washing with lukewarm water and mild soap. It comes in 24, 32 and 54 inch widths and may be cut to fit any size rug. The underlay should be cut slightly smaller than rug size—about one to two inches from the edges of the rug—so that it will not extend beyond the edges of the rug.

Farm Tenancy Is Still On Decline. The decline in farm tenancy, a trend which began in 1930, has been even more pronounced since the close of World War II, according to Charles E. Clark, farm management specialist at State College. His statement is based on a recent study conducted by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. As of January, 1947, 26.9 per cent of the farms were operated by tenants, says Mr. Clark. This is almost a 5 per cent decline from the 31.7 per cent tenancy of 1945. The greatest relative decline has been in the South. Many plantation type farms formerly operated by tenants are now operated by owners. This is a result partly of mechanization on the farm and shortage of farm labor. Part owners have increased and a noticeable decline was shown in the percentage of farm land under lease. Many families whose principal income is gained in nearby cities have bought small acreages for country homes which the Census classifies as a farm. Few veterans returned to farming after the war. Only 5.9 per cent of all farm operators were veter-
