

IS THERE OIL IN HERTFORD COUNTY?

A contractor is slated to start sinking a shaft Monday near Ahsokie in search of oil. Machinery and equipment have been erected on the site near the Chowan River, three miles south of Cofield. W. W. Connell of Fort Worth, who holds oil leases at 10 cents an acre on a block of 100,000 acres, is backing the venture.

Food consumption per person in the United States was virtually unchanged from 1909 to 1938.

State's Polio Total Likely To Go Over Thousand

North Carolina's polio total is very likely to pass the 1,000 mark this week. The total so far was 998.

To help stem the rising total, the National Foundation for the disease said Thursday that they were sending $100,000 to help in the battle.

Although no cases have been reported in Haywood county, the surrounding area showed several cases. Asheville and Buncombe county had 68 cases.

A meeting of physicians and health officers was scheduled for 4 o'clock Thursday night. The medical men discussed methods of helping those caught by the raging disease and ways to stop the spread of the epidemic.

Most areas in the WNC section were spraying their towns thoroughly as a preventative of insect-spread germs.

And meanwhile, in Greensboro, workmen were working swiftly to complete a 134-bed polio hospital by Sept. 1.

Forty new cases were reported in the state Wednesday. Two new cases were found in Asheville. One of these was Asheville's youngest victim, a six-months old Negro baby.
