Source of Iron and Steel

Iron ore, the basic material from which iron and steel are made, is found in every state, although not all deposits are of a quality and quantity suitable for present-day commercial use. The largest part of the iron ore used in the United States comes from the Lake Superior district, mines in the states of Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin supplying about 63 per cent of current needs. Most of the Lake Superior ore comes from the Mesabi iron range in Minnesota, which yields more ore than any other deposit in the world. Next in importance to the Lake Superior district is Alabama, supplying about 11 per cent. Pennsylvania and 11 other states furnish the rest.

Minnesota's Silkworms

Among the produce reported in the 1930 U. S. census for southern Minnesota were 52 pounds of silkworm cocoons, 412 gallons of wine and 3,286 pounds of rice.

FOUR CROWD MARKS

CLEVELAND (AP)—Pro football attendance marks have been established in four cities by the Cleveland Browns, twice champions of the two-year-old All-American pro football Conference.

The Browns drew 80,067 at a home game against the New York Yankees in a Cleveland pro mark, and 70,090 jammed Yankee Stadium to watch the same two teams and set a pro mark for Gotham. San Francisco turned out 54,483 for a Cleveland game there, and 43,167 witnessed a contest between the Browns and Buffalo Bills at the northern New York city. All the marks were set in 1947.
