Large Crowd At Moody Reunion Held Last Sunday

A large crowd attended the annual reunion of the Reuben Moody family at the home of Mrs. R. H. Platt on Soco Gap Road Sunday. Several states were represented in the large group of friends and relatives.

During the program special tribute was paid to the memory of C. F. Platt and G. C. Platt who had passed away since the last reunion, and tribute was also paid to Ralph W. Moody whose body had been brought back from Italy and interred in the family plot in Green Hill cemetery.

After the program, a bountiful lunch was served on the lawn and later in the afternoon, Marjorie Moody, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Moody, of Franklin, delighted the group with readings and dancing.

PROBLEM NEATLY SOLVED

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Members of the city council had more than their share of rain. Every time a heavy shower began, a janitor hurried with a bucket to the chamber floor beneath a leak in the roof. Finally, the council passed an ordinance providing for funds to repair the leak.

You Can Still Get Your Money's Worth In High-Style Budget-Priced Dresses

TRIPLE-TONE . . . Smart combination of beige, cocoa and black in a smooth town dress of rayon gabardine, with two big gold buttons. Priced for working girls.

LOW PRICE, HIGH STYLE . . . Smart two piece dress for fall with black peplum jacket, black and rust plaid skirt in smooth wool. It features class and economy.

THRIFT STAR . . . Dressy cocoa-brown crepe with gold fob and chain, back flared skirt. All are designed by Terry Rogers, priced at less than $30.

BUDGET SWANK. Casual gray crepe with cocoa toned gilet, gold accents at neckline and belt. New notes are the slim, easy skirt and push-up sleeves.

By DOROTHY ROE, Associated Press Fashion Editor. In spite of the high cost of practically everything, it's a comforting feeling to know that you can still buy well-styled dresses of excellent fabric and cut for less than $30.

Though the prices of normally expensive ready-to-wear continue to spiral, America's budget dresses are still available in greater numbers than ever before.

It is interesting to note, also, that one of the popular price-dress manufacturers pay their designers as much or more than the famous couturieres, that they buy fabrics a half million yards at a time and turn out mass-production garments with assembly-line speed.

Others depend on copying successful styles in the higher priced field, turning them out by the thousands for popular consumption a few months after their original appearance.

Very dashing in sheer covert. $59.95. Toggery

At The Strand

The amorous object of William Powell's affection is a lovely mermaid, Ann Blythe, who just dropped in on him. The pair co-star in "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid," which shows Sunday and Monday at the Strand Theatre.

Huge Microscope To Aid Research

SEATTLE (UP)—New areas of scientific research have been opened at the University of Washington with the installation of a $15,000, six-foot high electronic microscope.

The massive instrument, used in the university's engineering experiment station, is capable of magnifying objects to 25,000 times their actual size. Specimens that are mere specks under a conventional microscope spread to postage stamp dimensions under a potent electronic beam.
