Two Alexander men, Elden Correll and Arthur Rash, were fined a total of $300 and court costs recently in a trial at Asheville for violating the state game laws.

Correll was fined $50 on each of two counts, unlawful possession and transfer of dead game, deer and squirrel and hunting during a closed season without a license. Rash was fined $50 on each of these counts and an additional $100 on a charge of using a firearms silencer in illegal hunting.

Two 30-day sentences were suspended as to Correll and two 30-day and one 60-day sentences were suspended as to Rash.

The county game protector reported this morning that the two men were caught hunting near the Haywood county line by game protectors along with highway patrolmen of this section.

Farm Questions and Answers

(Compiled by Extension Service at State College)

Question: How can I stop my hens from eating eggs?

Answer: Egg eating may get started in a flock as a result of poor feeding and management practices. Thin shell eggs that get broken easily usually start an outbreak of egg eating in a flock. At the first signs of this vice, check to see that the birds are having access to plenty of clean oyster shell or limestone grits, and direct sunshine or an adequate supply of cod liver oil or other sources of Vitamin D. In order to make thick, strong egg shells a bird must get plenty of lime in the form of ground limestone in the mash, or in the form of oyster shell or limestone grit from hoppers, combined with Vitamin D. A shortage of either lime or Vitamin D will result in the production of thin shell eggs.

Other important means of preventing or checking the egg eating habit are as follows: 1. Provide at least one nest for each five hens. 2. Darken the nests. 3. Use plenty of clean nest litter such as white shavings. 4. Gather the eggs several times a day. 5. Feed milk in some form, if available. 6. Prevent the production of thin shelled eggs in the summer by keeping the houses as cool as possible.

Question: To what extent are dairymen using artificial breeding?

Answer: In 1939, a report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture shows that 7,539 cows in six associations were bred that year. In 1947, over 1,000,000 cows were bred artificially. Wisconsin alone bred around 200,000 cows. Records show there are now over 600 associations in 36 states. This rapid growth is due to the fact dairymen are getting results and are pleased with the many advantages this service offers over natural breeding. North Carolina now has associations operating in 30 counties.

Question: Are there any disadvantages to artificial breeding of dairy cattle?

Answer: There are none which cannot be overcome by properly operated breeding associations, according to Extension dairy specialists at State College. Don't expect artificial breeding to settle cows on which the bull has failed. The Question: Are all proved bulls good sires?

Answer: By no means. Records of the U. S. Department of Agriculture for many years show that of the hundreds of bulls proved in Dairy Herd Improvement Associations less than 50 per cent increase production in their daughters as compared with the daughters' dams. Therefore, around half of the bulls that have been and are now still in general use are lowering rather than increasing milk production.

Our most valuable raw material

In schools all over the South "our most valuable raw material" is being tempered and worked into strong, courageous stuff.

We cannot look into the bright, eager faces of these youngsters without seeing great things... industries as yet unbuilt... frontiers of science as yet unexplored... better ways of living and working together as yet untried.

We see, too, the trained minds and capable hands of those who some day will guide and operate the Southern Railway System that "serves the South."

And we are grateful for the privilege of sharing in their education, through the taxes we pay in every community.

Just look into the young faces around you. You'll renew your determination to protect and preserve our American heritage of freedom and opportunity. So that the dreams of our children may come true. So that our land may rise to even greater heights.
