Postcards Recommended As Spark Plug Gauge

CHICAGO (U.P.)—The Outboard Boating Club of America says the post office will help you check the gap in your spark plugs if you don't happen to have a conventional feeler gauge to run between the electrodes.

The gap should be from .020 to .025 inches wide, it says. Since an ordinary U. S. government postal card is approximately .010 inches thick, boating enthusiasts, or just plain motorists, can get a fairly accurate reading without much trouble merely by slipping two cards through the gap.

And, the organization adds, "if you can split a postcard in half for the extra .005 of an inch, you're welcome to try."

City Folk Interested In Farm Problems

ITHACA, N. Y. (U.P.)—A growing number of non-farm people are showing greater interest in the land and the people who farm it, according to Robert J. Howard, chairman of the New York state production and marketing administration committee.

A better understanding of the interdependence of agriculture and urban life is developing everywhere, he said, as townspeople realize that land cannot be maintained and production continued if the farmer "goes broke."

"Conservation is being taught in schools," he said. "Libraries and book stores report an increasing demand for reading matter on soils and conservation."

"Townspeople as well as farmers are attending farm conservation demonstrations."

Hybrid Hogs Show Farmers How To Produce More Pork

MAKING FARMERS CROSS—Landroc crossed sow, ready to cross.

LAFYETTE, Ind.—Hybrid hogs developed at the Purdue University experimental farms are showing farmers how to get more pork out of every porker.

The Purdue farms have produced one special breed with pigs weighing an average of 212 pounds at 154 days of age. Purchured Durocs used for comparison weighed 188 pounds at the same age.

Not only do the Purdue hybrids gain weight faster than ordinary breeds, but their carcasses have a higher percentage of prime meat. That means more money for the farmer and cheaper pork chops for the consumer.

The hybrid pigs were developed by continued inbreeding mating of relatives—among descendants of purebred animals. The resulting inbred hogs were mated with similarly inbred hogs developed from a different purebred stock.

Experiments at Purdue during the past eight years have shown that the inbred pigs themselves are not suitable for commercial production—they decline in productivity as inbreeding progresses. But when two different inbred lines are crossed, the resulting porker has all the vigor and productivity lost through inbreeding, plus an additional something called "hybrid vigor."

Purdue research has developed two inbred lines of hogs which are crossed to produce the hybrids. One of the lines, the "White King," resulted from intensive inbreeding among descendants of purebred Chester Whites. The other line, called the "Landroc," was produced by inbreeding descendants of a cross between Durocs and the Danish Landrace bacon hog.

Experiments both at Purdue and at other experimental stations point to another use for inbred lines. Not only can two inbred lines be crossed to produce a new and better kind of hog, but an inbred line can improve existing purebreds by selective mating.

Living Costs Found Mostly Uniform

LINCOLN, Neb. (U.P.)—The idea that the cost of living varies sharply from city to city doesn't carry much weight with the business research bureau at the University of Nebraska.

Living expenses are 12 per cent lower in New Orleans than in Washington, but those are the two extremes, the bureau reported. In 34 cities studied, the "average difference" amounted to less than three per cent. Dr. Edgar Z. Palmer, bureau chief, said. Food costs varied about 1 1/2 per cent.

"It seems to make little difference what city we live in," he said. "Living costs too much in any, and there is not much choice."

Population appears to have no effect on living expenses, Palmer said. Seattle, New York, Milwaukee, San Francisco, Boston and Detroit were classed at the top of the expense sheet, and Indianapolis, Buffalo and Houston among the lower cost cities.

"Decca".

"A Christmas Carol" by Ronald tuckian who learned from his father, another hillbilly artist, Dorothy Shay, comes through with an album of "Coming Round the Mountain", a selection of mountain airs. Dorothy sings the story of a middlewestern heroine, Joan of Arkansas, and one tune about an innocent country girl "Pure as the Driven Snow" and six more sprightly numbers: "The Nutcracker Suite" by Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra; "Perfume Set to Music" with music by Harry Ravel; "Dusty Manuscripts" with Sammy Kaye (RCA Victor).

It was dishwasher! The management regrets the error, sir!
