Crosby, Miller Set To Revive Jazz As Tomorrow's Music

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Fans of the old two-beat jazz, who've kept a candle in the window for it these many years, say their lost love is finally coming home.

By-hop's dead. So's swing. So's everyday jam-sessioning. Jazz, says Hollywood cult, is the music of tomorrow as well as of yesterday.

One movie director, David Miller, an all-out, 100 per cent dyed-in-the-wool addict of jazz, has set up a call at Paramount studios, where he's making "Top o' the Morning" to wait for the revolution.

"We're determined to bring back an honest-to-goodness two-beat jazz," Miller said. "People have been calling jazz 'corn' for a whole generation, but a lot of us have kept the candle burning in the window. It looks like jazz is about to return."

It Takes a Specialist Not everybody, naturally, can qualify for this cult. It takes what Miller calls an "advanced, not retarded" swing fan. Bing Crosby is, with Miller, a co-leader. They've converted Ann Blyth and Barry Fitzgerald.

Crosby and Miller take time some evenings to rhapsodize about the jazz items in the huge record libraries they both own. Other times they get together to listen to jazz stars and groups at theaters and jam sessions.

The trouble with jazz is, Miller said, it's got to be good. "Even in its heyday, jazz was something only a few musicians could play perfectly," he said. "That's one of the things that hurt it. Thousands of people tried it and never got anything but noise."

"The few really good jazz players are getting to be the idols of the few real fans who have the taste to appreciate them."

Miller says he may be in the second class but he's certainly not in the first. He just gets noise when he plays the piano or sits in on a jam session.

MEN STRUT THEIR STUFF FALLS CITY, Neb. (UP)—The Presbyterian church ran the following ad: "Come and see what the men can do." About 300 people turned out to see what it was all about. The men prepared a sausage and pancake supper, served it and then washed the dishes.

White Grub Damage Reduces Seedlings 30%

White grub damage in the N. C. Forest Service's tree nursery at Clayton has reduced the seedling output this year by 30 per cent, according to Assistant State Forester Fred Claridge.

Damage was heavy because of the exceptionally dry growing season, Claridge said. The Division expected to lift 9 million trees this winter, but recent inventory figures indicate there will be only about 6 million at this nursery.

Claridge states that orders have been heavy and that the demand will probably exceed the supply. However, there is a limited amount of loblolly and shortleaf pine, and red cedar left at the Clayton Nursery, and some white pine left at the Hendersonville Nursery in the western part of the State.

Landowners still wishing to order seedlings may do so by writing to District Forester Charles C. Pettit, Jr., P. O. Box 936, Sylva.

Czechs Claim Credit For Lightning Rod

PRAGUE (UP)—Czechs have taken steps to revive the memory of another "neglected" Slav scientist who they said discovered the lightning rod six years before Benjamin Franklin flew his famous kite.

A commemorative service sponsored by 12 scientific organizations honored Prokop Divis. At the meeting, Prof. Julius Stornard not only credited Divis with the lightning rod but said he also was the first to investigate the possibilities of treating disease with electricity and that he had "suspected the possibility of lighting by electricity 120 years before Edison."

Inspection Lane Program Shows Results In State

The Motor Vehicle Department today came up with some convincing evidence to show that the Mechanical Inspection Program is doing the job it was intended to do—SAVE LIVES.

The Department stated that in 1946, 104 fatal accidents, killing one or more persons per accident, were caused by defective equipment on vehicles. In 1947, the year the Legislature passed the Inspection Law, and while there was much publicity and discussion concerning it, only 58 fatal accidents were caused by vehicular defects.

But the Department announced that the record for 1948 is even better. For the first nine months of the year, statistics show, only 24 fatal accidents were attributed to defective vehicles. The Department explained that since the Inspection Law went into effect in January of this year, motorists have realized the importance of keeping their vehicles in safe condition, and the lanes have done much to educate motorists as to safety devices on their vehicles that need constant attention.

Arthur T. Moore, Director of the Mechanical Inspection Division, said that through December 11, 723,000 vehicles had been inspected at the State's 40 inspection lanes. He estimated there are around 87,000 vehicles that still must visit the lanes by January 1, and urged motorists to get their inspections as quickly as possible. Moore said the lanes would be able to take care of all these cars if the owners will only bring them in.

Prosecuting Attorney Takes It On Chin

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP)—City Prosecutor Richard P. Stoll didn't know whether to be glad the defendant was found guilty or unhappy because he was used as a yardstick in obtaining the conviction.

A detective had arrested the defendant for loitering. In testifying, the officer said he based the arrest on the fact the man "never has worked". Proof of that, said the officer, was the condition of the prisoner's hands.

"Why," the officer said, pointing to Stoll, "his hands are as soft as yours."
