Writing What We Think

Every newspaper man and woman at some time or another, wishes for the time when he or she could turn loose and write just as they feel, disregarding all rules of journalism and

Society editors have, at different times, written elever articles ridiculing typical sosiety events, such as playing up the groom by going into detail in describing his costume giving little attention to the bride.

Up in Wakefield, Mass, the editor of the Daily Item stood it as long as he could, and said what he wanted most for Christmas was:

A gown or decoration that isn't "pretty" A hostess who doesn't look "charming" A table that isn't "attractively set".

A cake, bouquet or gift that isn't "beautiful." refreshments that are not dainty, deherous, delectable, or delightful-or maybe delevely: a meeting at which "a general good ture was not had by all.

A meeting or event at which no "enthusiarm was shown; an attendance that was "unto have large, or a Christmas tree that wasto the law decorated.

Doesn't anybody ever run something that is a tlop?" the Item writer asked. "Are there no distressed brides who look sloppy or doesn't any hostess or program chairman ever louse up the refreshments or the entertainment?

He opined that "there must be some meetings for which only a few show up and some of the programs must fail to evoke 'enthusiastic support or 'approval'."

In other words," he concluded, "doesn't named County Farm Agent, astybody ever have something once in a while

There are some things that everybody ing five counties. knows about Sweet Adeline. She is the girl who by uninhibited confession is the idol of found in the Rateliffe Cove Commore than any other. To hear it told, she has been pined for in more nights, her fair face his beamed in more dreams than the Greensboro opens offices in the U. S. Bureau of Census with all its diligence might count. most mental damage?

Answer: No, writes Dr. Elmer Klein in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases. Fifty per cent of the psychiatric casualties of the Iwo Jima campaign were returned to active duty after a comparatively short rest and treatment with sedatives, while the average discharge rate in psychiatric hospitals was ten to twelve per cent. This was because fighting such as that on Iwo breaks down more men who are basically healthy-minded, and no matter what he goes through, it is a man's basic mental health that makes him get well.
