Seedlings From 2 State Nurseries Are Exhausted

Forest tree seedlings at the N. C. Forest Service's two nurseries have been completely exhausted and no more orders are being accepted, District Forester Chas. C. Pettit, Jr., announced.

Pettit said orders for one half million trees cannot be filled and the money is being returned to the applicant.

The Forest Service's Clayton and Hendersonville Nurseries produced more than 6 million seedlings this year and the entire stock has been sent out to more than 1500 cooperators. Because of the tremendous demand for the forest seedlings Pettit urges all landowners planning to plant next year to get their orders in to this district forester's office early in the Fall.
