

Club's new 500-page cookbook. It was Mrs. Truman's favorite dish—Ozark pudding.

The pudding was only one of many toothsome-looking exhibits entered in the Congressional Club's tea and food fair, but it attracted the most curiosity.

The recipe appeared in preliminary accounts of the publication of the cookbook and set housewives over the nation whipping it up for the family. It resulted in a flood of letters to the White House. Some of the housewives said it didn't come out so well as it should.

The White House explained the recipe is a very old one and the beating of eggs and so forth in those days was done with a fork or wire whisk, which took a long time. People using modern mechanical beaters wouldn't get the same results.

If you want Ozark Pudding to be a success and truly delicious, the Club's cookbook committee advises, "beat your egg for a long time with a whisk or a fork, and remember Daniel Boone as your arm aches." For your information, however, the recipe was tried out both ways by the U. S. Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics.

"It doesn't matter how you mix it, the pudding always turns out well," the bureau's researchers announced.

The cookbook was on sale at the food fair, which the women attended in droves, all decked out in early spring finery and flower-laden bonnets. Some of the books were autographed by Mrs. Truman, who wrote simply "Bess Truman" on the fly leaf. These sold for $7.50. (Un-autographed books sold for $3.75.)

Regents Board Scolded For Faulty Grammar

BALTIMORE (UP)—Labor Herald, a weekly publication, says the board of regents of the University of Maryland is a little rusty on grammar.

The board issued a lengthy, formal explanation of the university's aims and policies, and it drew this comment from the Herald:

"The bad composition, the faulty syntax in many paragraphs, the wrong use of words, and mixed tenses are errors for which no excuse can be forthcoming.

"Surely, those at the top should be more careful of their speech, else we shall be forced to conclude Maryland education is in a bad way."

CONTRAST—Life magazine is planning to contrast in a picture layout the careers of Movie Sex-tress Ava Gardner and Mrs. Liston Malpass of Clinton, a shapely striking brunette who defeated Miss Gardner in an Atlantic Christian College (Wilson) beauty contest several years ago. Mrs. Malpass, the former Janie Fitzgerald married a prosperous Clinton businessman and has two children. You know about Ava. A Life photographer was in N. C. last week preparing the feature.
