JESUS FACES THE CROSS
THE LORD FORETELLS HIS DEATH AND RESURRECTION

Scripture—Mark 8:27-9:1, 31-34; Luke 9:28-36, 51
By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
MEN WHO ARE AHEAD of their generation in thought have always been opposed and maligned, often martyred. They "tread on the toes," as we say, of influential people and those who oppose any change for fear they will suffer from those changes.
As today, so it was in the time of Jesus. He could see clearly that His opposition to the leaders of His day—the heads of the established church and those with whom they had influence—would lead inevitably to His death.
All through his ministry He tried to prepare His disciples for this tragedy—which was also His triumph—but they could not understand Him or believe that such could be.
Mark tells us that Jesus and His disciples went into the towns of Caesarea and Philippi, in the north of Palestine, and as they walked along, He asked them who people said He was. They answered that some said He was John the Baptist, and some Elijah or one of the other prophets.
"But whom say ye that I am?" He asked, and Peter answered,

"Thou art the Christ."—Mark 8:29

reverently, "Thou art the Christ." Possibly because they thought of His power as shown in the miracles He performed, they could not understand how any harm could come to Him.
Then He charged them to tell no one. He told them that the Son of Man must suffer many things—be rejected of the elders, chief priests and scribes, and be killed—but that after three days He would rise again.
They still could not understand, and Peter rebuked Him. Jesus in turn chided Peter, saying, in the words He had used to Satan when He was tempted by him. "Get thee behind Me, Satan for thou savourest not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men," meaning that Peter had no idea that this would naturally follow Jesus' teachings and the opposition it had aroused, according to God's plan.
When He had called the people, as well as the disciples to Him, He told them whosoever followed in His footsteps would also have to bear His cross and might suffer His fate, but that "whosoever

Prominent Baptist Leader Says . . . Attend Sunday School

Dr. C. O. Johnson of St. Louis, Mo., president of the Baptist World Alliance, says the phrase "Going to Sunday School" is one that has come to be used too seldom.
"The real significance," the minister declared, "is attending Sunday school with the family."
The family unit in the world is the basis of all civilization. Developing the family unit is the hope of the future. No place in all our activity should we more readily and more whole-heartedly unite than in uniting as a family in attendance at the Sunday school and, of course, the worship service.
It is not wise for a parent to say to a child, "You must go to Sunday school." Much better, of course, is the other way around, to say "Come let us go to Sunday school."
The influence in the life of a boy or girl of the regular attendance of parents at the Sunday school, Sunday after Sunday, cannot be over estimated. Boys and girls are dependant upon us for example. It is not safe for a boy who has a father who insists on sending him to Sunday school while that father keeps an engagement on the golf course. It is no less a sin to send the family to Sunday school while the man of the house finds his way to the office to get caught up on some work which he wanted to get done before the new week started.
Nothing is so refreshing as to gather with friends of other families to study the Word of God on the Lord's Day, and then to sit in the place which is dedicated to worship and listen to the message of the pastor as he speaks for God to the hearts of men.
A knowledge of the Bible is necessary to be an educated person.
