

Animal Vaccination Starts Soon

Haywood county's animal residents were reported today in good physical shape—and in about three weeks a program will be started to help keep them that way.

Dr. A. R. Riegg, county rabies inspector, said the vaccination of dogs against rabies would start April 18 at clinics throughout the county.

He advised dog owners that these vaccinations are required yearly by law. Owners may have their pets inoculated any time within 30 days after the clinics start operating.

But after that deadline, pets who do not wear 1949 anti-rabies tags will be subject to death, and their owners liable to fines ranging between $10 and $50 or jail sentences of 10 to 30 days.

There hasn't been a case of dog rabies in at least three years in the county, he added. But, the veterinarian warned, the spring and summer are the periods when the disease is most likely to break out.

In reference to animals in general, Dr. Riegg said, the only case of rabies in recent months was that of a suspected cow in Jonathan Creek community. The infected animal was killed, however, before it came in contact with other animals or human beings.

The only other case of rabies that occurred near Haywood in recent months was that of a calf which died of the disease about six weeks ago.

Dr. Riegg said about 50 clinics for dog vaccinations would be set up in the county. This is about the same number that was established last year.

LANDS IN MIDDLE OF CONTROVERSY

ARRIVING AT LaGUARDIA AIRPORT in New York, this giant double-deck Stratocruiser lands right in the middle of a controversy between the airlines and the Port of New York Authority over leases at the new Idlewild Airport. First of the large ships to land within the metropolitan area, the plane's normal 147,000 pounds was lightened to stay within the required 105,000-pound limit at LaGuardia. (International)

GENERAL DODGES PACT QUESTION

SECRETARY OF STATE when North Atlantic Defense Pact negotiations were begun, Gen. George C. Marshall (center) takes his ease in Miami Beach, Fla., with William D. Pawley (left), former U. S. envoy to Brazil, and Cuban sugar magnate Jorge Sanchez. Asked to comment on the Atlantic Pact, Gen. Marshall answered newsmen that all he knows about it is "What I read about it in the newspapers." (International) move it after cooking rather than before, the food specialists suggest. This may save time as well as nutritive value because skinning a hot boiled potato is quicker and easier than paring a raw potato.

Carrot skin seems to give little or no protection to nutritive value in cooking. Many housewives prefer to leave the skin on young, small, tender carrots. Mature, stored carrots, on the other hand, may be more appetizing if pared before cooking.

Equipment used in cooking, though clean, may need to be sweetened occasionally. Odors may arise from lack of use or from prolonged storage of articles of food equipment in a musty odor in solution.

State HD Agent Gives Hints On: Spuds, Buttonholes, Cooking Utensils

Clothing specialists say it is the number of stitches per inch, the type of thread, the quality and kind of fabric, and the kind of stitch that affect the wearability of buttonholes. The number of stitches is of first importance and the right kind of thread is another important factor in long-wearing buttonholes. Buttonholes made with unmercerized thread are more resistant to wear than those made with mercerized thread, the specialists say.

The kind of fabric and the kind of stitch used also affect wear. On medium quality percale, buttonholes should be longer than on higher or lower quality percale. The so-called purl stitch is better than the whip stitch for making buttonholes wear.

Potatoes boiled or baked in their jackets offer important dividends, especially in vitamin C, over those pared before cooking, nutrition studies show. If you want to serve potatoes without their skin, re-

Rev. Young To Be Guest Preacher At New Church

When the Rev. Russell Young left the Whittier Methodist church as supply pastor three years ago, a new church was being erected. Mr. Young, now pastor of the First Methodist church of Waynesville, will return to Whittier Sunday to preach the first official sermon in the new $30,000 native stone church.

The ceremonies will mark the official opening of the edifice, whose pastor is the Rev. O. E. Thorne.

An overflow congregation of worshippers is expected to attend the official opening.

The new church's auditorium can seat 250 persons, and it's educational building contains ten Sunday School rooms, a large youth chapel and a kitchen.

The Waynesville minister became supply pastor of the Whittier church in 1946, after he was honorably discharged from the Army Chaplain Corps.
