Jackie Aimers is 16, a plump, bright-eyed, independent breadwinner. Her routine gets her up at 7:30. She goes to school, then to her job. She says she will be a model when she grows up.

This year she thinks it would be fun to have a vacation, but she can't afford it. The one and only vacation she ever had was with a cousin at Lake Carmel several years ago. It was wonderful and Jackie hopes she can do it again sometime. She says: "Even a week off would be fine."

are expected to perform. But above all, ramps will be eaten. In charge of arrangements for his year's convention are Mr. Bryson, William Medford, secretary; and A. W. Parker, treasurer. F. W. Woody, Claude Williams, and Dewey Sutton staged the first ramp convention in 1932 at the Gap, after planning it during a con hunt.

Ramps were known before then, however, to the mountaineers who found them in the buckeye flats. And to children who found them useful when they wanted to get out of school early. To the housewife, they are just another challenge to cooking skill. Some people eat ramps raw. But many a delegate at the ramp convention prefers more refined methods, like making a salad out of the leaves, or frying the roots, fried, in scrambled eggs, with or without ham.

When the radio school started, he sent the students showing mechanical aptitude to the station's technicians for training in radio engineering.

The training extended to every department of the station, including the library, where Vivian Watkins presided last Saturday, and the front office, where Joan Morris, another student, was on duty.

For the initial student operation, the staff was selected at tryouts the preceding Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

Every Saturday, says Mr. Knutti, high school students will run the station, presenting a variety of programs.

The staff will change each month, he added, to give as many students as possible experience in "live" radio work.

Stop Worrying And Keep Teeth, Dentist Advises

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—Modern dentists are now warning: don't worry about losing teeth, or you probably will. In fact, don't worry! Many persons are losing teeth because of excess worry.

Dr. Merrill Swenson, professor of dentistry at the University of Oregon, told the Salt Lake district dental society to take it easy.

The dental professor explained when people worry they grit and clench teeth. That, he said, weakens surrounding bone and leaves space for decay.

But Swenson said he wasn't going to worry about other people losing their teeth. He wants to keep his.

Actress Finds Hard Work Kills Wrinkles

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Beauty shop owners and masseurs do a million dollar a year business keeping that nasty word "wrinkles" out of Hollywood vocabularies.

But they never make a cent from Elsa Lanchester, who has her own recipe for defeating the inroads of time.

Miss Lanchester works in one movie after another eight hours a day, then works every night at the Turnabout Theater. She has kept up her grueling schedule for more than 20 years, but her energy, complexion and lively eyes would do credit to a starlet in her 20s.

A lot of Hollywood ladies keep lovely by spending hours each day up to their elbows in lemon juice.

"I spend time each day up to my elbows in soap suds washing my lingerie and stockings," says Miss Lanchester. "Wonderful for the muscles and the mind both."

"And great for the lingerie."

Works In Garden
Some stars take mud packs. Miss Lanchester once fell flat on her face in the garden at her Palos Verdes home.

"I work out in the open at least six or seven hours a week," she said. "It's more relaxing than 12 massages. And cheaper. And it keeps the garden looking nice."

You wouldn't describe Miss Lanchester as enervated, but she does keep her figure as she puts it, "within reasonable bounds."

"It doesn't take jumping rope or going through gym calisthenics at $10 an hour," she added. "I make my own beds and I run upstairs and walk when I can instead of riding."

Her husband, Charles Laughton, doesn't share Miss Lanchester's enthusiasm for the active life.

"Obviously," she said, "he has no concern for his figure."

He keeps mentally young, she added, by meeting three to five nights a week with young actors he is training in Shakespeare.

Dishwasher's Legacy Costs Him His Job

CHICAGO (UP)—A 73-year-old dishwasher complains that his $13,000 inheritance cost him his job.

"I wanted to keep on washing dishes," said Henry Sidenfaden.

He told his lawyer that when news of his legacy got around, his employer let him go.

"And I can't get another dishwasher's job, either, because they say I'd be in the public eye and people would be coming in trying to sell me things," Sidenfaden said.

Trout Season Opens On April 15; Limit Is 10

Thousands of trout anglers who have been waiting since last August to resume their favorite sport will be given the go-ahead on April 15 when the season on trout opens in the mountain section of the State, according to Clyde P. Patton, Executive Director of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission.

Trout fishermen are reminded that night fishing will not be permitted this year in designated trout waters. The night fishing ruling was passed by the Wildlife Resources Commission as a protection measure for night-feeding brown trout.

Spring stocking of trout has been under way for some time, and stocking operations should be completed or nearly completed by the time the season opens.

Dates and creel limits for trout fishing in National Forest areas are expected to be announced soon.

This year's trout season extends from April 15 through August 31, with a daily creel limit of 10, and a possession limit of 20. In Ashe, Alleghany, and Watauga County the trout season closes July 31.

IN ITALY IT'S THE 'LIE-DOWN'

ITALIAN WORKERS in Rome read copies of "L'Unita," the Communist newspaper, as they practice their own version of the "sit-down" strike. Under leadership of the Red-controlled Confederation of Labor, the men move in and occupy a factory where any sizable number of workers are laid off and stay until the employer gives in. State College Answers Questions It Pays To Pay More For Hybrid Corn Question: Why should a farmer pay $10 or more per bushel for hybrid corn seed when he can get other kinds of corn seed for much less?

Answer: A little figuring will show that extra money spent for hybrid seed is one of the best investments which a farmer can make. A bushel of corn will plant about eight acres. At a price of $10.50 per bushel, seed for one acre would cost approximately $1.30. So just one extra bushel of corn grown on that acre will pay for the seed cost.

Hybrids generally yield about 20 to 25 per cent more than the best sources of open-pollinated corn. A field which normally produced about 50 bushels of open-pollinated corn will yield about 60 bushels when planted to a hybrid. The extra 10 bushels should convince even the most skeptical that buying good seed is an investment which pays well at harvest time.

In terms of results, it is the open-pollinated corn rather than hybrid seed which is expensive to buy.

Question: Should DDT be used on dairy cows for insect control?

Answer: No, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Studies over a period of several years show that the application of DDT directly to milk cows for controlling insects results in the presence of small quantities of the insecticide in the milk. Even small amounts of DDT in a food of this type might prove harmful in time, particularly for infants and small children.

It is recommended that methoxychlor, another effective insecticide, be substituted for DDT in controlling insect pests on dairy cows. Farmers also are urged to make every effort to reduce fly breeding sources by proper cleaning and other sanitary measures.
