Do you call yourself a mystery fan?

If so, how many of these top-flight mysteries have you read in the past year?

Little—Black Coat.

It all started when two girls named Anne struck up a Pullman car acquaintance. One, Anne Hillier, was wearing a modish tweed coat with a large artificial rose—this rose being her means of identification to the people who were meeting her at Grand Central. The other girl, Anne McGraw, was wearing a museum piece coat of genuine seal with leg-of-mutton sleeves. The coats got switched and this whacky tale is away at full gallop.

Carr—Skeleton In The Closet

"The craftiness of irascible H. M. is the means by which he solves a murder of 20 years standing, a current killing and prevents a third.

Rice—Fourth Postman.

"Three companions of, and in, crime are again joined to untangle the killing of three postmen on the same route. John J. Malone, Helene and Jake Justice have their troubles with the too-operative Fairfax family, John J. has his usual race against elusive finances, not so elusive hangers-on, but in spite of a solution fabricated for the police and the public uncovers the true story of the tampering with the mail.

Smart Coats To Give The Youngsters
That Extra Glow In The Easter Parade

JUNIOR STYLE LEADER... Her princess coat is made of Hockanum's gray flannel, with white pique frosting.

SMALL PARADER... She's up to the minute in her cape-coat of fine gabardine, both practical and pretty.

BEST-DRESSED MOPPET... Her coat, fitted, flared navy tricotreen by Stevens, with new wide shawl collar.

Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Clark arrived Monday from New York to spend a short time at their home at Lake Junaluska.

Today's bloodhound is believed to be descended from a hound brought across the Channel by the Normans in the 11th century.

Approximately 5,600 people who make weather study their hobby are on the U. S. weather bureau's staff of "cooperative observers."
