U. N. is about through as an instrument of peace. When God is left out of man's plans for world peace, nothing but unrest and wars result.

The signing of the pact might be misunderstood as a signal for rearmament in some nations, and might make the Soviet Union a little uneasy and start a turmoil among her satellites.

Finally, since the United States has signed the pact, and as we may start sending supplies and ammunition to the smaller nations, Russia might either try to snatch the supplies or try to make out that we are the aggressors who are trying to make a war.

So in all, I think that the United States has taken a very unwise step in signing the pact without trying to see Russia's side of the story.

The U. S. should have never signed the Atlantic Defense Pact. It was complete admittance that the U. N. has falled.

The road to peace is not lined with military bases. We shall have them on the border of Russia. How would we feel if Russia had bases in Canada and Mexico? Wouldn't we also be strengthening our defenses?

The nations of the Pact will be joined for military purposes. This will increase the fears of the Sovlets. They will arm further. There is going to be a rush for arms and history proves that a war nearly
