Rabies Symptoms Described By District Health Officer

The District Health Office today issued information to aid people to tell whether a dog is infected with rabies and in handling of rabid dogs that have bitten persons or animals.

Health officials warned dog owners that the spring and summer months are the periods when rabies is most frequent, and that inoculations are required by state law.

Dr. Mary Michal, district health officer, said a diagnosis of rabies "must always rest" on evidence of pathological lesions or the inoculation tests.

She added that dogs who have bitten people or animals should not be killed unless it is obvious that they show symptoms of rabies. Even in this case, Dr. Michal said, such dogs should be killed only when they cannot be captured safely.

She explained that "it is important to know whether the dog is mad."

"If the dog can be found and kept under observation for 10 days and no symptoms appear, the rabies treatment is not necessary."

Dr. Michal advised that the dog should be turned over to the proper authority for observation and study.

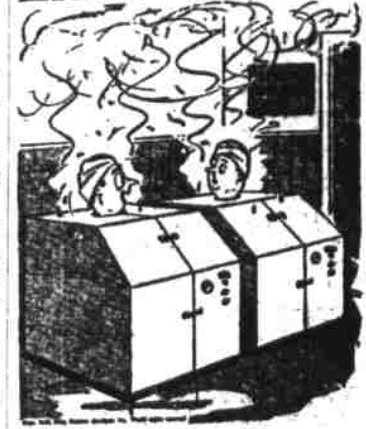

"Animals killed early in the course of rabies may fail to show microscopic evidence of the disease."

Thus, she added diagnosis would be delayed.

"If the dog is killed," she continued, "the head or brain should be sent to a laboratory without delay, packed in ice if it is to be shipped any great distance."

"When ice packing is not practial, the brain should be placed in glycerin."

In reference to rabies symptoms, Dr. Michal said the course of the disease runs in three stages—premonitory, excitement, and paralytic.

The first two stages may be absent or transient. But all rabid animals invariably become paralyzed before they die.

An infected dog's first symptom that he has the disease will be in changed disposition.

He is easily excited—but does not show a tendency to bite.

Soon the restlessness becomes more marked, and the animal may become furious and even show signs of delirium.

As is generally believed, the rabid dog does not fear water. It rushes around attacking every object in his way.

Dogs suffering from furious rabies often run amazing distances, biting many other animals and hu-

Mass Vacation Plan In Bahamas Near

Hamilton, Bermuda (UP)—An Englishman is working on plans to give Americans a mass-production vacation that will include free dancing lessons and diaper service.

The project in the Grand Bahamas off the coast of Florida will be patterned after the holiday camps in England which have made a fortune for Billy Butlin, hotel man. Butlin is building his vacation project in the Grand Bahamas now and expects to have it open by Jan. 1, 1950. His "holiday village" will have accommodations for 2,000 persons.

Butlin expects to fly his American vacationers to the island in chartered planes for an all-inclusive vacation at a rate of $100 a week. For the flat rate, the vacationist will get his room, meals, golf, swimming, roller skating, and among other things, a baby sitting service.

Butlin disclosed his Grand Bahamas building plan at the re-opening of his Princess Hotel in Bermuda. The hotel, which was closed for 10 years because of the war, reopened when the Furness Line resumed service to the island with its

She Wasn't Driving But Gets Ticket Anyway

CHICAGO (UP)—Mrs. Ada Walker, who has never driven a car in her life and who wasn't driving one at the time, anyway, got a ticket for driving without a license.

It was like this: The car stalled. Her husband, Jacob D., got out to push it and told her to get behind the wheel.

When he pushed, the car shot ahead. Mrs. Walker couldn't locate the brake pedal, and the car crashed into a parked car.
