Junaluska Assembly Will Open Saturday

Vote On Bond Issues Set For Saturday

County Day Program Is Set Sunday

Light Vote Predicted For This County

Haywood county citizens will join their fellow Tar Heels at the polls Saturday to decide whether or not the state will issue $200,000,000 worth of road bonds and $25,000,000 worth of school bonds. The road funds would be used to finance Governor Scott's extensive rural road construction program, while the money from the school bonds would help finance improvements on existing buildings and new construction throughout the state.

This week, County Election Board Chairman Jerry Rogers forecast a Haywood vote of 6,000 in the county's 22 precincts. Interest, he said, seemed particularly high in the rural areas of the county. One observer in Canton said indications were that between 1,800 and 2,500 citizens would turn out in his city for the election out of a total registration of approximately 3,000.

The polls will open at 6:30 a. m. and close at 6:30 p. m. Frank Knutti, manager of Station WHCC, said yesterday the radio audience will be kept informed of the election developments both for Haywood county and the state as a whole through spot broadcasts of the results as they are received at the county auditor's office and on the United (See Election—Page 6)

County School Board To Discuss Budget Monday

The Haywood County Board of Education will meet at 10 a. m. Monday in County Superintendent Jack Messer's office to discuss a budget for the next two fiscal years. Mr. Messer said the budget would not be adopted at this meeting. Selections of principals and teachers for the school year will come up at this session for board approval.

New Equipment Added To Ray's Super Market

Two departments of Ray's Super Market have been completely modernized and enlarged and the entire store re-painted. In the meat department, four large modern cases have been added—a fish and poultry case, two service cases and a self service case. A refrigerated fruit and vegetable display case has been added in the produce department, all of the self-service design. The store has 4,500 square feet of floor space, and according to William S. Ray, manager, other changes are planned for the convenience of customers in the near future.

Speakers At Lake Junaluska Sunday

W. M. Landess, director of the Information and Education Section, Department of Agricultural Relations, of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will be featured speaker on the Haywood County Day program Sunday at Lake Junaluska Methodist Assembly.

The Rev. J. Clay Madison, pastor of Hickory's First Methodist Church and former pastor of the First Methodist Church of Waynesville, will preach the principal sermon Sunday morning at services marking the formal opening of the 37th session of the Lake Junaluska Methodist Assembly.

Haywood County Day this Sunday will mark the formal opening of the Lake Junaluska Methodist Assembly for the 37th season. Pastors of all Haywood County's Methodist churches are expected to attend the opening union services starting at 11 a. m. with Dr. C. N. Clark, Waynesville district superintendent, presiding. The principal sermon will be delivered by the Rev. J. Clay Madison of Hickory, former pastor of Waynesville's First Methodist church. The afternoon program will feature Haywood County's Community Development Program, starting with a picnic at 12:30 o'clock for residents of communities throughout the county. That night, members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship organizations of the county's churches will hold a mass meeting starting at eight o'clock. Actually, the Assembly's three months season opened yesterday, and the first conference of the summer get underway Saturday when college youth groups convene for the first of six days of meetings under the direction of the Methodist Board of Education. 1949 Haywood Cancer Drive Goes Over $2,500 Goal

For the second straight year, Haywood County citizens have exceeded their quota in the annual drive for funds for the relief of cancer victims. Mrs. W. M. Cobb, campaign commander for the Haywood Cancer Society, announced today that $2,511.02 was contributed in the 1949 cancer drive — $11.02 above the quota set for the county, though the quota was $500 above the goal that had been set for last year.

Clyde Chief To Stay Till After Tuesday Election

Shay Henson indicated this week he would remain in his post as Clyde police chief until after the town election on Tuesday. Last week, Chief Henson said he would file his resignation to become a Portland, Ore., city policeman. Mrs. Joyce Haynes, town clerk, today quoted the officer as saying he had been asked to stay in office until after the voting. Mr. Henson has been Clyde chief for the last 28 months. He once served as constable for the four townships around Clyde and as a deputy sheriff. He said he planned to leave Clyde on June 15 for his new position on the West Coast.

State Workers Express Support Of Bond Issues

Haywood county members of the State Highway Employees Association unanimously adopted a resolution last Monday to get the county's voters to the polls in Saturday's election on the proposed state road and school bond issues. Sixty-five of the county association's 70 members attended the meeting at the State Highway Building in Hazelwood and responded enthusiastically to the appeals of V. R. Rhinehart, an Association member, for support of the two bond issues. G. L. Davis, chairman of the county association, presided. The adoption of the resolution followed Mr. Rhinehart's discussion of the advantages that would come with the voters' approval of the bond issues.

Citizens To Elect Aldermen Tuesday

Smathers, who is running on what is locally called the "Old Party" ticket, has on his team two aldermen seeking re-election, Charles Hawkins and Clayton Mahaffey. The third candidate for alderman on the Old Party slate is Ray Cashion, a new-comer to Clyde politics. Candidates for the town board on the Citizens Party, or New Party ticket, which is headed by Mr. Haynes, are Gerald Fish, Jay Morgan, and Cecil Spencer. Fish has served two terms as alderman in the past. W. Jarvis Campbell is retiring as mayor. Mark Haynes, who has filed as candidate for alderman, is reportedly running independent. N. C. West has announced himself a candidate for police court judge, an office he has held since the death of Manson Cagle last year. Bruce Brown, registrar for the election, said yesterday that the Clyde School gymnasium has been (See Clyde—Page 6)

Dr. Love Says Junaluska Assembly Faces Promising Season

The 1949 season promises to be the most significant of all for the Lake Junaluska Methodist Assembly. This statement was made by Dr. F. S. Love, the superintendent, just before the Assembly opened yesterday for the 37th year. He added that the highlight will be the initiation of the expansion program, drawn up a year ago by the Assembly Board of Trustees of 46 members, headed by Chairman Edwin L. Jones, Charlotte construction company president. The Methodist General Conference, the church's highest body, transferred its $1,000,000 worth of holdings to the church's Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference. This conference covers 3,000,000 Methodists in nine states. In connection with the expansion program, a series of south-wide summer schools, youth conferences, music institutes and other events has been scheduled. The season's first conference will open Saturday—the six-day student regional conference which is expected to attract young men and women from throughout the South and some of the middle western states. This season's visitors will be greeted by a "new look." In preparation (See Dr. Love—Page 6)
