Allens Creek School Report Is Given

By MRS. BLANCHE FRANKLIN Mountaineer Correspondent

Spokesmen for the Allens Creek school committee said Thursday night the Haywood County Board of Education had assured them it would work with the Community Development Program to improve the local school.

This report was given before an audience of approximately 75 persons who attended the Allens Creek Community Development Program meeting at the Allens Creek school.

Board officials were quoted as saying there would be aid in the project to enlarge the school building, add more teachers, and improve the grounds.

The improvement of the school is the top project in the program at Allens Creek.

C. L. Allen presided. Following the school discussion a spelling bee was held with Evelyn Moore and Lou Allen, captains and Lillian Gilland as being the word.

The date of the next meeting was announced as June 23.

Allens Creek community is blossoming with gardens now. This is one of the results of the Community Development Program. In addition to these gardens, many people have also improved the lawns about their homes.

Green Valley Church School Is Postponed

The Green Valley Baptist Church Vacation Bible School which was scheduled to open last Monday, was postponed because of preparation to move into the new church building on Height Creek.

Blanche Jarvis, the principal, announced that the classes would be held from 9 a. m. till noon daily. A picnic will be held every Friday.

Graduation will be held in the new church building.

In addition to the principal other members of the faculty are Mrs. Norman Grant, assistant principal, and Mrs. Connie Muse, secretary and treasurer.

Members of the staffs of the various departments are: Beamer - Mrs. Tom Freeman, superintendent; Primary - Mrs. Ralph Queen, superintendent; Junior - Mrs. Herbert Hunter, superintendent; Intermediate - Mrs. Dewey Ross, superintendent.

Mrs. Lucena Troutman and Mrs. Millard Freeman are among the women of the community who have volunteered to serve as assistants to the superintendents.

Children of other communities outside of the Height Creek section, are invited to attend.

Ratliff Cove Bible School Closes

By MRS. ALGIE RATCLIFFE Mountaineer Correspondent

Many people braved the rain last night to see the commencement program that ended the 10-day Vacation Bible School held by the Ratcliffe Cove Baptist Church.

Forty-nine pupils enrolled during the course of the school, which had an average daily attendance of 46.

Nine faculty members and 11 children did not miss a single class.

The class had a picnic Friday at the end of the school term.

One of the pupils, was little Carolyn Thomas, a Polish girl who recently settled in the community.

Physiologists say that the conscious experience of appetite is quite different from that of hunger.

New Barns Being Established In Ratcliffe Cove

By MRS. ALGIE RATCLIFFE Mountaineer Correspondent

Ratliff Cove's Community Development Program continues forward, with a new dairy barn recently constructed and another almost completed topping the latest improvements.

Community Chairman R. C. Francis has started milking in his Grade A barn, and Algie Ratcliffe's new Grade A structure as well on its way to completion.

Bramlette Stone has started a new crop for Ratcliffe Cove peanuts. Latest reports are that the new crop is up and growing fine.

D. Reeves Noland took a trip a few days ago — and bought 12 Ayrshire cows to add to his already fine dairy herd.

The smaller animal population of the community also was increased recently by eight rabbits added to the Carl Jones pen.

We are looking forward to Mrs. Mark Galloway's plans of the recreation committee.

Lower Crabtree People Team Up To Clean Community Center Area

By MRS. MILLARD FERGUSON Mountaineer Correspondent

An Army of Lower Crabtree residents "invaded" the Riverside Community Center Saturday Morning.

Their weapons: jeeps, tractors, hand tools, and enthusiasm. Their objective: to clean up the grounds and wire the building for lighting.

For eight hours the workers including the members of the community's church and grounds committee, attacked the weeds, rocks, and mounds, and installed the wiring in preparation for the community picnic supper which will be held at 6:30 P. M. July 1.

Speakeading the attack of some 20 citizens was Ways and Means Committee Chairman Millard Ferguson, armed with his tractor.

But this cooperative improvement job isn't ending here. Plans are to paint the building soon.

The community center structure, once used as a school was purchased by the citizens a number of years ago. It also serves as a religious center for groups of all denominations.

Among other improvements made more recently were those on several residences in this area.

Carlisle Davis remodelled his home and has started building a new all-purpose barn. In the work on his house, he has installed all modern conveniences, among other improvements.

John Robert Ferguson recently completed his new frame home which includes all modern conveniences.

Jack Messer, superintendent of Haywood County schools, has completely remodelled and modernized his farm home and has become a permanent resident of the community.

Clarence Green made general renovations on his home, painting the inside, and installing a modern kitchen, among other improvements.

Well Known Negro Dies Following Heart Attack

Hugh Leatherwood, 73, well-known negro, died suddenly of a heart attack on June 3. He had engaged in gardening for many years.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday at the Baptist Church on Pigeon Street, with the Rev. Joseph Smith of Sylva officiating.

Survivors include the widow, a daughter, two brothers and two sisters.
