

NEW HOPE FOR 'EIGHT-PERCENTERS'

DETERMINED TO GIVE the eight-percent of all babies born prematurely a better chance at life, New York City's Department of Hospitals is successfully operating a unique service. Nurse Judy Nelson of Bellevue Hospital is caring for a two-pound, one-ounce incubator baby that has been rushed to the institution in a special ambulance. When premature infants are born in smaller hospitals, a call brings to the scene the emergency vehicle and a nurse with a portable incubator. (International) that they are working fewer paid hours.

"We see the same people holding the same jobs they have held cashing pay checks now that are smaller than those they cashed before," he explained.

Staying with Mr. Smith at the Club were Mrs. Smith and their young son, Robert, Jr.

Young Robert, like his father, is one of the Country Club's most faithful patrons. Except for a few years during the war, he's been coming for his summer vacation ever since he was born.

He and his folks spent their first summer there in 1935—the first summer Robert, Jr., had seen to the world.

Mr. Smith, Sr., prefers the sort of vacation he was taking at the Country Club—to settle down in one place and relax.

"Many people start driving the first day their vacation starts, and they keep on driving until it's over, never spending more than a night at any one place."

Mr. Smith, as he headed for the golf course outside, observed he couldn't see that kind of vacation. But he doesn't limit his time in Haywood to the summer. His

County Asked To Sponsor Apple Queen Candidate

Organizations in Haywood County have been asked to sponsor candidates for the contest for North Carolina Apple Queen, who will reign over the 1949 North Carolina Apple Harvest Festival in Hendersonville September 2-5.

Selection of the Apple Queen is one of the main features of the four-day festival, held annually in Hendersonville. Other events include a square dance team in North Carolina, a large parade, orchard tours, open-air band concerts, window displays, a court ball, street dances, and apple sales.

job as head of the extensive Southern system of the big food store chain brings him into western North Carolina and Waynesville off and on throughout the year.

Library Notes

MARGARET JOHNSTON
COUNTY LIBRARIAN

Baldwin—Golden Shoestring.

"A picture of a marriage in which neither partner has been honest with the other. The emphasis of the story is on the evolution of the young couple and the influence of other people upon them."

Caldwell—Let Love Come Last.

"The story of the strange marriage of Ursula, the prim and lady, to the fanatically ambitious William Prescott, self made, doting indulgent to his children, ruthless in business. Woven into the story of the marriage is Eugene Arnold's revenge for Prescott's treachery to Arnold's father."

Huntington—Slender Reed.

"An analysis of the character and reactions of a shy, lonely sensitive woman. Long since disillusioned about her marriage, ignored and dominated by her husband and daughter, Madge finally emerges as her sweet generous self after Roger's death and Margaret's marriage."

Marsh—Wreath For Riviera.

"Here again are Chief Detective Inspector Allyn, his wife, Troy, and his assistant, Inspector Fox. The characters connected with the murder of the piano-accordionist in a London dance band are a strangely varied group."

Morley—The Man Who Made Friends With Himself.

"The story of a literary agent who is advised by his love (who is also his analyst) to take a vacation and get acquainted with That Man who stalks his waking hours."

Rivett—Over The Garden Wall.

"A robbery, with only half a bottle of whiskey missing, leads Scotland Yard's Inspector Rivers to an odd assortment of characters in a neighboring house. The owner, a scientist and his Russian wife, a young newspaper couple, a masquerade, the robbed house containing valuable jewels and papers, a fire, a smuggling ring—add up some . . . British sleuthing!"

Simons—Running Thread.

"Set against the Charleston, South Carolina background of the Civil War Era, this is the story of an Irish immigrant girl and her love for a southern aristocrat."

Bridges—Wild Animals Of The World.

Representatives of every species of wild animal are described and illustrated with 252 pictures, 100

(full color Arranged alphabetically by popular name of animal)

Flesch—Art Of Plain Talk.

"Explanation and application of the author's theories and research on readability. The material was originally presented in a dissertation, 'Marks of readable style.' Emphasis here is on analysis of current writing—in magazines, advertising, government publications, textbooks—with specific suggestions on simple yet vigorous expression. The author's readability formula is appended."

Hager—Washington, City of Destiny.

"With concise text and over 200 photographs, taken for this book, the author and artist present a panorama of the past and present in our national capital."

Furnas—Anatomy of Paradise.

An informative book on a romantically misunderstood section of the earth. The natives and their lands presented in an ethnological correct survey by the author.

Gunther—Death Be Not Proud.

A memoir to John Gunther's seven-year-old son, who died after a series of operations for brain tumor. Not only a tribute to a remarkable boy but an account of a brave fight against disease.

Creekmore—All's Elephant.

"All who lived in India was the only person who could handle the baby elephant his father had captured for the Maharajah, so the animal became his special charge. One day Ali and Lado followed the tiger hunt and proved their bravery."

Tunis—Son of the Valley.

When the Tennessee valley authority threatened to flood the region including the Heiskells farm, there was much resentment. Sixteen-year-old Johnny Heiskell was curious about the new ways of farming taught by the county agent and gradually his anger changed to whole-hearted cooperation.

Bakeless—Story - Lives of Great Composers.

Brief biographies of the following nineteen well-known composers: Bizet, Borodin, Dvorak, Elgar, Gounod, Humperdinck, Massenet, Moussorgsky, Puccini, Purcell,

FRENCH MODELS SEW DURING STRIKE

WITH FRENCH SEAMSTRESSES determined to stay out on strike until their demands are met, Parisian fashion houses have resorted to drastic measures to combat the situation. Above, mannequins of a big Paris concern try their hand at sewing. The seamstresses, who are paid fifteen cents an hour, are holding out for a four-and-a-half-cent raise. (International)
