Mrs. Leckey Is Honored At Coffee Hour

Mrs. Robert Broese and her sister, Miss Mary Ray, entertained at a coffee hour at their home on Love Lane Saturday morning in honor of their niece, Mrs. Templeton Leckey, who, before her marriage last summer, was Miss Elizabeth Ray.

Mrs. Hilliard Atkins received in the dining room and presiding at the table were Mrs. John Smathers and Mrs. James L. Elwood. The coffee table was covered with an embroidered linen cloth and had as a central decoration an arrangement of yellow and white chrysanthemums, gladioli, and other fall flowers.

Trout are now being planted in remote lakes by helicopter.

Baptist Missionary Union To Meet Here Thursday

The annual meeting of the Asheville Division of the Woman's Missionary Union will be held at the First Baptist Church in Waynesville on Thursday, October 6, with the Woman's Missionary Society of the church as the hostess group.

The division embraces seven Baptist Associations: Buncombe, Carolina, French Broad, Haywood, Mitchell, Transylvania, and Yancey. The theme of the meeting will be "From Strength to Strength" and the morning session will open at 10:30 o'clock.

Reports will be made of work in the division, and Miss Mary Angenstein of Louisville, Ky., field representative of the WMU Training School, will speak on "Young Women Strengthened for Service". Mrs. Charles Griffin of Spartanburg, southern WMU representative, will speak on "Strengthened for World Advance".

Lunch will be served at 1:30 p.m., and the afternoon session will open at 2:15 p.m. Mrs. John Link of Mars Hill will sing a solo, and Mrs. Charles Robinson of Enka, former people's leader, will speak on "From Strength to Strength in Work with Youth".

Officers will be elected and committees will make reports, and the closing prayer will be made by Mrs. W. H. Tipton, former missionary to China.
