Tennessee Blamed For Delay In Road Building

The Knoxville Journal last week blamed the state of Tennessee for the delay in the construction of a new mountain road between Gatlinburg and Cane Creek. The new highway would connect a possible road from Cove Creek through the Pigeon River gorge. Approximately $4,000,000 in surplus state funds was earmarked last year by outgoing Governor Cherry for the Pigeon road, which still awaits State Highway Commission approval. The 27 miles of highway would cost about $7,000,000, according to the Journal newspaper said. Gov. Frank Chandler, Commissioner of Transportation had stated that the government is anxious to start construction of the Gatlinburg-Cane Creek highway, but cannot do so until the right-of-way which is owned at the state of Tennessee.

Longer Life Expected To Increase Over The Years

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Because people are living longer, this country has more older people today than ever. Surveys indicate the number of oldsters will continue to increase over the next 25 years. These people want to have something to do after they reach retirement age. Perhaps that's why interest in adult education is higher now than ever before. Estimates based on national state and local surveys indicate that up to 40,000,000 adults are interested in continuing their education in some form.

"Already the postwar expansion has been dramatic, wherever facilities and adequate leadership have been provided," says Galen Jones, Director, Division of Secondary Education, U. S. Office of Education. Approximately 3,000,000 adults and post-high school youth are being served each year by our public schools.

Mr. Jones believes the public schools have a unique responsibility for providing leadership and opportunity in the field of adult education, though he points out there are ample roles for a wide variety of public and private agencies to help do the job. These include open forums, civic education discussion groups, conducted excursions, radio listener groups, film forum discussions, lecture and concert series, educational camps, workshops or short institutes, community council, special activities for people past retirement age, newspaper columns or features, little theaters, training-within-industry programs.

A 1947-48 national survey revealed that probably three-fourths of all counties and districts with a population of 2,500 or above have some kind of educational activities for adults and out-of-school youth. While most adult educational activities go on in the evening, there is considerable activity in the daytime as well. Nearly 500 districts

Sale Of New Cars Ahead Of Last Year

Truck sales were slightly under last August, with 2,636 reported this year and 2,792 last year. August sales brought to 55,774 the number of cars sold this year and 15,843 the number of trucks sold.

Chevrolet continued to lead in both car and truck sales, with 2,211 cars and 829 trucks reported for the month. A total of 2,011 car sales and 759 truck sales were listed by Ford.

1,198 Accidents Take 62 Lives

A total of 1,198 accidents in which 62 persons were killed and 693 injured were investigated by the Highway Patrol during August, the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles reported today.

During the month the Patrol spent 114,166 hours on duty and traveled 1,213,919 miles. A total of 64,194 vehicles and 80,536 driver's licenses were inspected on the highway. Nine hundred and fourteen tickets were issued, 1,275 equipment tickets and 3,187 warning tickets. Lights were corrected on 21,504 vehicles, 595 vehicles were weighed and 59 found to be overloaded. Stolen cars recovered numbered 53.

The Patrol made 5,639 arrests, 442 of which were for drunken driving. Citations were issued to 5,459 persons. A total of 7,183 complaints were investigated. Patrolmen rendered 13,172 first aid. First aid was administered in three cases and five fires were extinguished.

The Appalachian Trail, a public highway and scenic trail, a total of 2,068 miles from Maine to Georgia, reported afternoon classes, and some 270 reported morning classes. Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing reports that much of the interest in adult education is directed toward specific vocational training as preparation for the varied opportunities opening up in commerce, industry and agriculture.

"But," he adds, "there are also more and more people intent upon making up for educational advantages they have missed in their youth. Or perhaps they are concerned to broaden their understanding of the complex world in which they live. For all of these adult education interests our public schools have a responsibility."
