LEON HART

DICK SHEFFIELD

. Star Endmen for Notre Dame and Tulane

By FRANK ECK

AP New features Sports Editor

PHILADLEPHIA (UP) - John He would make a pretty good fullback but coand Margacet Bendig fielded their own household baseball team this eaptain Leon Hart appears to be more valuable as a Notre Dame end.

The six-foot-four, 245 pounds r from Turtle Creek, The Bendigs are the parents of Pa, just outside Pittsbucgh, looks like the first All-16 loong children, and nine of the boys, ranging in age from 19 to America litch and since Bud Eerr made the team 36, decided they had what it takes in 1939. The only other Notre Dame end to make All-America was Chuck Sweeney in 1937. With Tom Bendig, 29, as then

Bart, named to the AP third team last fall, serves as a double duty man for the crack Notre Dame eleven He can carry the ball on an end-around play or get under forward passes. If Emil Silko is called "Seven Yard," then Hart hould be known as "Nine Yard". For the past two season, he has averaged nine yards a carry. Last season he carried the pigskin four times and gained 39 yards. On his first four carries this fall he went

36 yards

He led Notre Dame's pass receivers in 1948 gathering in 16 pitches for 231 yards and three touchdowns. Against Southern California eight Trojan tacklers hit him but he went right on for a touchdown, that helped the Irish to a 14-14 tie.

Hart, a 21-year-old senior, has won three pre vious football monograms at South Bend

Down around New Orleans, La., Tulane has a brilliant end in Dick Sheffield, six-one senior from Kirbyville, Tex. The shifty 190-pound 25-year-old veteran led the Southeastern Conference ends in scoring last season with three touchdowns and 19 extra points for 37 points. He caught 17 passes for 318 yards.

In Sheffield's first three games this season he caught nine passes, two of them for TD's, and made 116 yards.
