When you want to:

- Contact customers in a hurry
- Close an important contract
- Follow up new prospects
- Speed up deliveries

It would be difficult to reckon the full value of the telephone to your business. A single call may close a deal worth hundreds of dollars—save an expensive trip—sign up a new account—or make a friend for your firm. Your telephone is a means of doing more business and doing it faster, better, more economically.

When you consider the many different ways it serves you, in comparison to the price you pay, telephone service stands out as a real bargain in your business.

And its value keeps increasing as service becomes faster and better and the number of customers and prospects you can call grows day by day.

bers, and are interested in excavating some rich Indian mounds in and near the Cherokee Reservation. There are some mounds along Richland Creek and Pigeon River, Mr. Wilburn pointed out.

The Cherokee feast will be held at the National Council House, and this is the prepared menu:

First will be parched corn; followed by a choice of 16 fruits, including blackberries, huckleberries, strawberries, raspberries, elderberries, wild plum, wild cherries, crab apple, ground cherries, persimmon, field apricots, fall grapes, fox grapes, opossum grapes, dewberries and gooseberries.

The four kinds of nuts will be hickory nuts, hazelnuts, walnuts, and butternuts.

Three drinks are shown on the menu, and are: shumacade, sassafras tea and spicewood tea.

One of the most unusual things about the feast is the seven kinds of breads, which are chestnut bread, bean bread, hominy bread, wild potato bread, flour corn bread, sweetpotato bread, and molasses bread.

For the seven meats, the menu includes: roast bear, roast deer, speckled trout, roast bison, mushrooms, racoon, and turkey.

The nine vegetables are potatoes, corn, hominy, beans, wild greens, pumpkin, succotash, artichoke and ramps.

H. E. Wheeler is director of the sponsor of the feast and Annie Lee Wheeler, assistant. Samuel E. Beck is the founder.

Joe Jennings is superintendent of the Reservation.

Lone Boatman Survives The Sea

Arch Yow, 23, of Henderson, arrives at Wilmington, in his home-made sailboat after a grim five-day battle with the Atlantic ocean. Without a watch, a compass or a set of charts to guide him, the University of North Carolina student estimated he sailed more than 350 miles in the Gulf Stream before he finally sighted land. Then he put out for the beach in a seven-foot skiff which capsized in the surf. Fisherman rescued him unharmed. (AP Photo.)

They are using a card system. But Red Cross officials explained, however, that volunteers will be welcomed to the donor room regardless of whether they have formally signed such a card. The cards are simply to obtain pledges, they said.

Red Cross workers will help the volunteers get to the donor room by providing them with transportation.

Tomorrow's scheduled visit of the Bloodmobile assumed an even greater importance than its previous visits, in light of a recent statement by National Red Cross officials.

They and hospital authorities expressed grave concern over the current state of the nation's blood supplies. These, they said, are now at a level that is dangerously low. Waynesville Township High School students have been working vigorously to send interest in the blood bank to new heights.

Under the direction of Mrs. H. Phelps Brooks, the high school art teacher, and Mrs. Elmore Burgess and Mrs. M. G. Stamey, they have made more than 20 posters regarding the blood bank for distribution throughout Waynesville and Hazelwood.
