"The poor dear has had fever something awful! The mere MENTION of doing dishes or dusting and mopping sets him off."

A Letter to Santa

DAUGHTER of a steel worker, Jacqueline Kersul, 6, of Pittsburgh, writes a letter to Santa. Now that the steel strike has been settled and the child's father is back at work, it is a sure bet that Santa will answer her requests. (International)

Christmas Gifts From The Kitchen

YULE COOKIES . . . Easy-to-make Christmas gift.

By CECILY BROWNETONE, Associated Press Food Editor. Nothing's sweeter to tuck into Christmas packages than a little jar of homemade jelly or a box of cookies. Make a batch early, wrap the containers attractively. You'll be mighty glad to have these holiday packages ready well in advance.

ORANGE SPEARMINT JELLY. Ingredients: 2 1/2 cups orange juice, 6 cups sugar, green coloring, 1/2 bottle fruit pectin, 1/2 to 1 1/2 teaspoons spearmint extract.

Method: To prepare the orange juice, grate rind and squeeze the juice from 6 medium-sized oranges. Add the juice to the rind and let stand about 10 minutes. Press juice through small cloth. Measure 2 1/2 cups into a very large saucepan. To make the jelly, add the sugar to the juice in the saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and, while mixture is coming to a boil, add green coloring to give desired shade. As soon as mixture boils, stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim. Add flavoring and pour quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once. Makes about 8 six-ounce glasses.

For some of your other gifts how about cookbooks? I find there's always one that's "just right" for a particular friend. Cookbook formats are so attractive these days they're most appropriate for Christmas. If there are men on your list who like to cook you might consider one of the following books—all by men!

Gay as can be in its magenta, black and silver binding "Rector's Naughty '90s Cook Book" by Alexander Kirkland (Doubleday and Company, New York) might be just the right choice for a friend who's particularly interested in the Victorian era. Here are recipes culled from Mr. Rector's files as well as amusing Victorian memorabilia. "The Unprejudiced Palate" by Angelo Pellegrini (Macmillan, New York) is a recent book about cooking from which a lot of men will get a great lift. Written by an English literature teacher at the University of Washington it's interesting, has an original point of view, and some fine recipes.

"Food Is a Four Letter Word" by Eliot Elisofon (Rinehart, New York) is a new cook book by a well known photographer who writes beguilingly about food. As Gypsy Rose Lee says in her foreword Mr. Elisofon is a strictly "meat-and-potatoes guy" who got switched over to the gourmet side. What I particularly like about this book is that the author makes good cooking seem so easy. It's partly the casual way he writes, but maybe more his excellent taste in choosing dishes that do not take too much preparation but are fine in flavor. Then, for a cookbook collector, there's the recently published "Delights for Ladies" by Sir Hugh Plat, reprinted from the original 1609 text with an introduction by G. E. and K. R. Fussell (Transatlantic Arts, New York). This is one of the earliest cookery and household recipe books.

Going to Daddy

A WILTED flower clutched in his baby hand, winsome Frank Brown, five-months-old, arrives at LaGuardia Field, N. Y., by plane from Frankfurt, Germany. The tot, who has never seen his father, Cpl. Frank Brown, was brought to the U. S. by his mother. They will meet the soldier at the home of his parents in St. Louis. (International)

Boxing Contest Rules

Standard "ring" for boxing contests must be elevated five feet above the floor level of the arena. Generally, the maximum measurement of the ring is not standard for professional fights. Its size is determined by boxing commission rules. The ring can be from 16 feet square up to 24 square feet, which is roped off and constitutes the fighting zone. Another three and one-half feet on the four sides outside the roped area, called an "apron," usually prevents a fall to the floor of the arena proper in case a fighter is pushed through the ropes.

THE HOLY SHOW in New York is drawing good attendance, we hear. Old Dobbin is still pretty popular—and you don't need a gallop poll to prove it.

In most parts of the country November's weather isn't proving even a reasonable facsimile of October's.

Notre Dame is to have a new Hall of Science. No, Jasper, T-formation quarterback strategy positively will not be taught there.

Now that the United Nations is to go television, those Soviet delegates might attend a school

The world is growing warmer, says an astronomer. Maybe so, but we doubt if that statement has any effect this month on the sale of galoshes, benjamins and long underwear.

Grasshopper Damage

"Grasshoppers in a single year have destroyed crops valued at over a hundred million dollars!" The foregoing statement is found in U. S. department of agriculture farmers' bulletin 1828, which further states: "Within the regions most subject to outbreaks are included the principal wheat, barley and flax-producing areas of the United States. Included also are enormous acreages of alfalfa, corn, oats and rye. All these crops are particularly susceptible to grasshopper attack, and there is never a year in which some damage is not done."

Poisonous Plants

Among our poisonous plants are poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac. During the summertime, persons who enter the woods, travel along creeks or other waterways, or walk through fields along fences, hedgerows or stone walls should be especially careful. It is well to make it a point to learn just what these plants look like, as, in addition, what to do if infected. There is no such thing as immunity to poison ivy. Persons who have avoided infection previously, after repeated contact with these plants, may develop poisoning through subsequent exposures, under different conditions.
