

C Tourist Association Give Membership Signs

John P. Alley discussed before the association, and the activities which the association will sponsor as a move to improve the tourist business.

It was said that the Association members to maintain high standards; to stress neatness, cleanliness, and good health rating of the area.

In addition to that, the association is to agree to adhere to the provisions of the state law.

It was also stated that when a provision is filled, that the association will be made to find suitable accommodations for the tourists.

The association has recently purchased large green and white signs to be distributed to the members to display.

The association is also distributing signs which are tied-in to the state.

E. Ray, chairman of the commission, presented the signs in his introduction, and that the tourist business in North Carolina was the best in the state.

Taffeta dinner dress.

By VERA WINSTON

NAVY blue taffeta is the material of a delightful dinner dress that is youthful yet dashing. The body of the dress is fairly straight. The off-the-shoulder flared cuffs are attached to the strapless bodice, and are detachable when desired. The hem of the dress repeats the flared effect. A separate sash is draped around the midriff and ties in back where it falls to the hem. The sash can also double as a stole. A separate narrow, self-belt is then worn with the dress.
