—This second primary... Smith and Graham back... of $200,000, mainly for advertising in the papers and on the radio. Naturally, the printing companies here are tickled pink at the prospect. There was plenty of cold cash in the Graham camp in the week of the primary, and it slapped some of the Smith folks full in the face on Saturday morning. One Smith manager drove 150 miles Sunday to ask the folks here: "What hit me?"

'Comanche Territory' Coming To The Strand

Universal-International's Technicolor western spectacle "Comanche Territory," co-starring Maureen O'Hara and Macdonald Carey, adds in stirring fashion the name of Jim Bowie to the list of immortal Americans glorified on the screen.

Scenic grandeur and thundering Indian battles combine with intense emotional action and booming barroom brawling as the story of dramatic episodes in Bowie's life unfolds through the thoughtful production and expert direction of Leonard Goldstein and George Sherman, producer and director, respectively.

The role of Bowie, famed for the two-edged hunting knife to which he gave his name, is handled convincingly by Macdonald Carey, while the part of the beautiful and strong-willed young woman who might have become his wife but for the fatal intervention of the Battle of the Alamo, is in the shapely and capable hands of Maureen O'Hara.

The story opens with Bowie, traveling west in 1830, finding a gang of outlaws plotting to rob the Comanches of their lands, in a silver rush. Carey becomes the Indians' friend and helps them to fashion replicas of his famous knife.

The outlaws, led by Maureen's brother, beguile the Indians into turning in their firearms, then attacking them. Bowie and his friend, Daniel Seeger, Indian scout, aid the Comanches in the battle. Maureen makes a last-minute switch in sentiment and also joins the Indian cause, saving them from annihilation by rushing a wagon load of rifles to them.

A dramatic finale is achieved when Carey informs Maureen, now as much in love with him as he with her, that his friend Sam Houston needs him at the Alamo and she can reach him there if she needs him. An excellent supporting cast in the film is headed by Will Greer and Charles Drake.

FAMILY NEAR EXTINCTION

STOUGHTON, Mass. (UP)—Within eight years, seven members of the Schmitchel family have met violent death. Four perished in fires, one by a fall, one in action during World War II, and one by suicide.

Strand's Western Epic

Maureen O'Hara and Macdonald Carey face a critical showdown with Indian warrior Rick Vallin in a tense scene from Universal-International's Technicolor "Comanche Territory," outdoor-action film featuring Will Geer, Charles Drake and Pedro De Cordoba. Indian battles highlight the new film directed by George Sherman. Coming to the Strand Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

RAT-KILLING CAT LANDS ON COMPANY PAYROLL

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Whisky, a black and white office cat, gets a "salary" and three weeks annual holidays for rat catching.

Seven years ago Whisky, only a kitten, walked into a local office and refused to budge. The company's warehouse was infested with rats when Whisky started systematically to kill them off.

The company was so pleased that each week it takes five shillings (.50c) out of petty cash to feed him. At Christmas time it pays all expenses for a two-week vacation for Whisky at a home for cats and dogs, with an extra week for Easter.

Whisky believes in displaying his skill and deposits each kill in the piano showroom. When business is good he lines them up side by side.

SILVER DOLLARS HELP COLLEGE CELEBRATE

WAYNESBURG, Pa. (UP)—Waynesburg College switched to the silver standard to mark its jubilee celebration this month.

Paul R. Stewart, president of the college, ordered all salaries and bills paid with silver dollars, during May. Twenty thousand of the cartwheels were shipped from Colorado for the purpose.

Stewart said the stunt dramatizes the role the college plays in the business as well as the cultural life of the community.

THIEF KNOWS HOW

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Lee Henry couldn't get his car started and went to call a garage. Returning, he found the stalled car had been started by a thief.
