veys for the 6,000 and 5,000-ft ntains referred to in the Mc-Coy booklet be checked, there is no doubt in my mind (knowing Haywood as I do) that more 4,000ft; peaks would be added to the above list.

The elevation in Haywood below 4,000 (those in the 3,000 and 2,000ft. class) we must go also to the N. C. Geol. Survey Bulletin 27. From this list there are recorded 29 altitudes ranging from 3,347 to 2,000 ft. The average for the 29 points is 2,682 ft. It should be noted that many of these points for measurements were in the valleys. For instance, Waynesville railway station is 2,637 ft., and my father's homeplace on Prospect Hill in Waynesville is 2,802 ft. and is the highest point in Waynesville, And nearby Balsam Gap is crossed by the Southern Railway at 3,347 ft. the highest altitude reached by a standard-gauge railway in the eastern United States.

To Recapitulate:-There are in Haywood County the following County, the count is even lower: 4 peaks ranging from 6,286 to 6,200 Comedian 295,237 ft.

39,778 ft.

3,000 and 2,000 ft. and over 29, totalling 79,094 ft.

There are 111 measured altitudes totalling 531,359 ft. The average for these 111 points of measurement is 4,787 ft., and this is the average elevation of Haywood elevation. Accordingly, it was County on the basis noted. The highest measured point is Mt. Guyot (6,621 ft.) in the main Smoky Range. The lowest is about 1,396 ft. at Waterville, where Pigeon River finally breaks through the Great Smoky Ridge into Tennessee to unite with the French Broad River,

The highest peak within Haywood is Richland Balsam (6,540 ft.). It is at the head of Allen's Creek (a tributary of Richland Creek) in the Great Divide of the Balsam Range and if I am correct is some distance inside the Haywood-Jackson line. On a rocky point in the eastern side of the "top," I chiseled this height some 60 years ago.

From the average (4,787 ft.) worked out above, it seems sure that Haywood County has the greatest altitude of any county east of the Mississippi River, But it seems well to make assurance doubly sure.

The Yancey-Mitchell (counties) complex contains some high peaks, including the highest of all, Mt. Mitchell (6,684 ft.). So Yancey's high points were checked up and ured points) of 4,787 feet. there were found 19 peaks ranging from 6,684 ft. down to 6,001. Of 5,000-ft, points there are only 12 North Carolina and of any county in North Carolina and of any county Hamlet points there are only 12 ranging from 5,900 down to 5,070 ft. So it is plain that Yancey (even with Mt. Mitchell) does not compete with Haywood. For Mitchell of the Balsam Range?). So it semed that it might contend with Haywood for the greatest average checked in the McCoy booklet and the data listed.

When the data were put in order, Swain was found to have only 13 peaks over 6,000 ft., and of these 11 are below 6,500 ft. It has 33 peaks over 5,000 ft. high, but of these 22 are below 5,500 ft. These contrasted with Haywood's 19 peaks above 6,000 ft., and 54 in on their foibles. I'd be out of busithe 5,000-ft, class.
