

Florida Vine Yields Drugs For Rheumatics

Plant Introduction Garden here. There are others in the Canal Zone and Porto Rico, but U. S. Department of Agriculture reports say there are no seeds.

Speed Is the Aim
This handful of vines is not the only hope of starting a cortisone seed industry in the United States, but it may get off ahead of the African sources. Reports from West Africa where the Americans are looking for good vines, indicate that the seed may not be available until next year.

Meanwhile Florida's vines do not need to wait for seed to propagate them. They produce new vines from slips in as little as ten days. They grow luxuriantly and they flower profusely.

Pollination Is a Problem
The problem of getting seeds seems to be one of pollination. Insects are believed to have carried the pollen for the two vines which have seeded. Hand pollination is possible, but expensive, because these vines grow high and wide climbing over large trees. A single vine in Florida may have a six-inch thick base.

Only One In America
The sole seed-producer is in the R. H. Montgomery

One other rheumatism in North America is record-yielding seed. This one is the Institute, Soledad, Cuba. Vines are among half a dozen grown from seeds brought from West Africa in the late twenties. Dr. David Fairchild, is another Strophantus at Fla., and one at the U. S.

Livestock Meet Set For July 1

State Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine and other agricultural leaders will appear here July 1 at a western district livestock meeting sponsored by the N. C. Farm Bureau.

This was announced today by Oral L. Yates of Iron Duff, president of the Haywood County Farm Bureau.

The meeting will open at 11 a. m. at the Court House in Waynesville. This will be one of a series of the state farm organization is sponsoring for the promotion of the development of the livestock industry in North Carolina.

One of the features of the program will be a tour of Haywood County's livestock farms, including beef cattle and dairy.

Among the leading figures who will speak at the session, in addition to Mr. Ballentine, are Lon Edwards, of Hookerton, president of the State Farm Bureau; R. Flake Shaw of Greensboro, executive vice-president of the Bureau; and Dr. D. W. Colvard, head of the N. C. State College department of animal husbandry.

Mr. Yates said committees, comprising these members, would assist in the arrangements for the session:

Arrangements—Frank M. Davis, chairman; C. B. McCrary, and Jack McCracken;

Entertainment — T. C. Davis, chairman; Mrs. Henry Francis, and David Boyd;

Reception—Joe Palmer, chairman; Ed Justice, and K. O. Carswell.

Wood Carvings Of Indian Artist Are Being Shown Here

Wood carvings of Going Back Chiltoskey, widely known Indian artist, are being shown in one of two exhibits of Indian crafts, sponsored by the Haywood County Library for a week, beginning today.

Chiltoskey's work is being shown in Slack's store window and the second exhibit including Indian baskets, bead work, dolls, woven articles, and other items, are being shown at the Library.

Chiltoskey was born in Cherokee and gave early evidence of definite ability in art when he won a medal for woodworking in high school. He spent two years at the Indian School of Crafts, Santa Fe, and later studied in the Handicraft School at Penland, N. C., the Chicago Art Institute, Oklahoma A and M. College, and Purdue University. Exhibits of his work have been held at Rockefeller Center, the University of North Carolina and in Washington, D. C.

During World War II his extraordinary skill as a wood carver was used to advantage. He made scale models of all types for the Engineer Board at Fort Belvoir and when the invasion of Africa was being planned, he helped to construct topographic models on a scale of 1:5,000 of those sections of the country where troops were to be landed.

He returned to Cherokee in May 1947 as an instructor of arts and crafts.

They Invite Truman To Dedicate Blue Ridge Parkway

Editor's note: Shown here is only one of the many North Carolinians who have been working on this invitation for the past two years, and that is R. Getty Browning, of Raleigh.

PROFESSOR GIVEN YEAR'S LEAVE

Dr. Richard Powers, associate professor of business administration at Wake Forest College, has been granted a year's leave of absence from the college.

On July 1, he will begin work as Coordinator - Consultant of Economic Research for the Advisory Council on the Virginia Economy.

PORT PROJECT WORK BEGINS

Work has started on Wilmington's modern port terminals. Officials of the N. C. State Ports Authority said this beginning was not mere paper work but an actual getting down-to-business and the start of actual construction on the State-financed $5,000,000 port development program.

EX-MAYOR FACES JAIL TERM

Sam C. Carter, former Chadburn mayor and magistrate, will start his one-year jail term July 15. Judge J. Paul Frizzelle sentenced Carter to one year in jail for failing to account for fines and court costs while serving as mayor and magistrate in Chadburn.

Personal To Woman With Naggng Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slow down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complaints of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to acid deposits or dietary indiscretions. If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild, diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years.
