Clyde Club Holds All-Day Meeting

An all-day meeting of the Clyde Home Demonstration Club was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Stanley Livingston with Mrs. John Stamey, Mrs. M. A. Leatherwood and Mrs. Robert Corzine as associate hostesses.

The program included a demonstration by Miss Mary Cornwell, home agent, showing methods of improving home storage for comfort and convenience.

Mrs. Roland Leatherwood, president, presided, and the members voted to continue holding all-day meetings in preference to afternoon meetings.

Mrs. Livingston won the award for the most outstanding project for the month, which included the sanding and finishing floors. She conducted the members through her home which was recently completed and called attention to the use of Waterloo on the floors and woodwork as well as kitchen cabinets. She also showed a number of completed projects including bedroom curtains, slip covered furniture, upholstered furniture, refinished refrigerator, dresses for her small daughter, and several items of handkerchiefs.

Clothing was modeled by several members and special attention was given a sheer dress made by Mrs. Tom Rogers at a cost of sixty cents. Mrs. Levi Morgan modeled two dresses. Mrs. Roland Leatherwood modeled one dress, and Mrs. Lewis McCracken showed two bed jackets. Mrs. Pat Cole displayed a hand knit sweater and Mrs. Goodson exhibited tatting articles.

Other project reports were made by Mrs. Levi Morgan, family life leader, who discussed the need for teamwork and cooperation of family members for greater happiness within the home and community; Mrs. Bill Hardin, poultry

HOT PLANES TO BE STUDIED
LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Hot planes really get hot, fliers have discovered. When they start flying faster than sound they generate the same kind of heat that burns up meteors which enter the earth's atmosphere. Now the University of California is ready to learn and do something about it.

A new wind tunnel has been built on the Los Angeles campus to study heat generated by fast planes. It is hoped to learn what kind of cooling systems will be needed by such planes.

Children at Play
When a child plays house or store or airport, he clears up ideas and gets information. It is his way of interpreting and understanding the world.

Oil from Steam
The oil shale is crushed and treated with steam as it moves over a perforated plate underlaid with crushed rock. The steam causes the oil to escape and drip into a container.

Hazards to Child in Summer

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

SUMMER has some special hazards for children, especially young children. With children some from school, many of them play in the streets, when more toddlers incline to go there, too, and with such long days and so much good weather, children from two to six more often face such dangers in summer than in winter.

Then, too, tots incline to wander off from the home yard and lawn and to explore new places. Some are attracted to ponds and streams, and summer freshets claim some little lives. In rural areas where so many new ponds are being made, water hazards increase for tots. Also some youngsters from six to twelve build rafts and venture with them on larger streams, ponds and lakes. Besides, the "old swimming hole" has perils for children who can't swim. And children who are not well disciplined and supervised may venture into deep water at regular bathing places. Because many parents are not alert to such dangers there are a good many tragedies.

Moral Hazards

For children under twelve or thirteen there are increasing moral hazards in summer, especially in outlying areas of villages, towns and cities. Children find it great fun to play at hide-and-seek and other chasing games or just at exploring among shrubbery, trees and underbrush. Being out of the sight of older persons, these strolling youngsters may engage in sex exploring and experimenting. One or two older youngsters can do immeasurable moral harm to younger children teaching them bad sex habits. (My bulletin, "Unde-may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.) Often parents whose young children can roam over wide areas away from the dangerous street or highway feel that their children are wholly safe. They are relatively safe from traffic perils but may face more moral hazards than if they lived in the slums of a city. These parents should be more watchful of their youngsters, know where they are and check on them more frequently.

Sex Habits in Children

Young Children

About the flower and vegetable garden, urban or rural, are perils from poisonous insecticides, especially to young children. The little child may touch or taste plants or fruit just sprayed and get into the spraying materials not properly stored. About the farm may be various kinds of poisonous materials. Also fluids there strong in acids and alkalis can be very perilous to young children. Wise parents have special places for keeping such materials. They also train the young child to avoid these places, having educated him well to respect "No." (My bulletin, "How Teach Tot Meaning of No" may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

About the farm are also many hazards to young children from the animals there and especially from the machinery — mower, hayrake, hayfork, tractor and the like. All the hazards about the farm to the child who grows up there increase greatly for the youngster who visits the farm from his urban home.

Wishing to keep our children safe and whole, we need to be constantly alert to the perils facing them in summer.
