Star Has To Learn To Walk Again

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Barbara Hale, who wouldn't for the world deny that she's as well endowed in the ambulatory department as any other Hollywood star, complains that she's having to learn to walk all over again.

"Why, I have a three-year-old daughter who gets about with less difficulty than I do these days," the actress moaned.

Her malady isn't serious, however. It's an attack of the costume movie virus that has hobbled her little legs.

For her latest technicolor epic, "Lorna Doone," Miss Hale is required to swathe herself in no less than 16 elaborate gowns, including yards and yards of silk, taffeta and metal cloth as befitting a debutante of the 17th century.

"I'm strictly a 20th century gal," Barbara said. "I'm just not accustomed to clothes that don't hug the silhouette and aren't short enough not to catch everything loose at ground level.

"Things aren't so bad now. But before I got accustomed to such antique getups, I practically fell flat on my face."

Taking Lessons

So she has been taking lessons in minding along and watching out for furniture.

"When it comes to sitting down, that's a job in itself," she went on, cataloguing her sufferings for art.

"The evening gowns are the most difficult because they're the most elaborate. One of them weighs 10 pounds and has enough cloth in it for a modern circus tent.

"It's beautiful, but wearing it is anything but a thing of beauty."

Although Miss Hale admits that living in another century doesn't suit her adult fancy, she confessed that as a girl she used to dream of an existence in the pre-television era.

"The age of chivalry interested me most," Barbara said. "I had crushes on Sir Lancelot and King Arthur. It seemed too bad that

Coming To The Strand

An amazed Elizabeth Taylor finds her boy friend, Van Johnson, suffering under the delusion that his dog is talking to him. It's one of the uproarious sequences from "The Big Hangover," coming to the Strand Theatre Sunday and Monday.

Jan Garber To Play For Dance In Hendersonville

Jan Garber and his world famous orchestra will be in Hendersonville to play a dance at the City gymnasium Tuesday, August 1.

The people of the area plan to roll out the welcome carpet for the Garber orchestra and welcome Jan was born too late to trail around with them in picturesque, flowing costumes.

Growing up changed all that, she said. After working in her new picture, the up-and-coming star decided that life in the 20th century, despite its jangles and threats, isn't so bad.

"At least," she said, "the girls are comfortably dressed."

Garfield Good On Stage, Film

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — John Garfield is one of the few stars to score continuing success both on Broadway and in Hollywood. "It's fun," he said, "but it's not easy."

"The worst part of it is that there's no place I call home," he said. "My wife doesn't know where home is either, and neither do the kids. That's kind of tough for a family man who likes to feel he has roots."

Garfield is currently in Hollywood furthering the west coast half of his career. Mrs. G. and the moppets are in New York, where the youngsters stay in school until summer comes.

"Then we'll be together here at Maui where we've leased a home for the summer," Garfield said. "But when fall comes we'll have to make another change."

"If I go to New York for a play, they'll all go with me. If I stay here for another picture, I'll have to start the children in school, then uproot them again when we go east later in the year."

The same problem has been confronting the Garfield family regularly since Garfield launched his movie career more than 10 years ago.

"It wasn't so bad when there were just Robbie (Mrs. Garfield) and me," Garfield said. "We could bounce around pretty much as we pleased before the kid came. But even then I wanted a place to call home."

That partly explains why the Garfields have never bought a home in California or New York.

"We're strictly renting people," he said.

Last year they lived in a big New York apartment while Garfield starred in the play "The Big home in style. For many years, Jan Garber played at the Laurel Park Casino and the Carolina Inn in Hendersonville.

In spite of the tremendous following which Jan Garber has created with his swing band, he has recognized the current trend toward sweet music calling his "sweet with a beat" and has augmented his band, making it one of the finest orchestras of any type in America today.

The Garber organization numbers fifteen and specializes in playing "the kind of music the people want to hear."

Knife." Then he came to Hollywood to do Warner Bros. "The Breaking Point." He has been running bachelor quarters in a Hollywood apartment where he even cooks most of his own dinners "because I hate to eat out." The Garfields keep that family feeling by long-distance telephone. "It isn't very satisfactory," he said, "but it'll have to do until I decide whether I'm going to be a movie actor or a Broadway actor. And that may never be, because I want to have my cake and eat it too."
