Camp Junaluska Girls To Hold Nature, Art Show

The girls of Camp Junaluska today are holding a handicraft and nature exhibit. The displays feature the things the girls have made in the camp's weaving and handicraft shops, and in the nature study course. On exhibit are items the girls made themselves ranging from hand-woven rugs to delicately-etched aluminum dishes. Featuring the nature exhibit is a flower show, displaying wild flowers in miniature arrangements and gardens. Among the displays will be flowers arranged in the colors of the four tribes to which the girls are assigned when they reach camp to stay each season.

Miss Herman arrived Sunday from Chapel Hill for a visit to her parents and was accompanied by two of her classmates, Misses Margaret and Jo Stewart of Greensboro.

Hazelwood Boosters Hear Red Cross Talks

Two officials of the Asheville Regional Blood Center told the members of the Hazelwood Boosters Club last Thursday night of the American Red Cross' activities in general and its blood program in particular. Homer Kidd, administrative director of the Center, told his audience of the methods used in the program of storing blood for immediate and future use. Dr. Wright, physician serving on the staff of the Center and a retired Army officer, told of the work the Red Cross had done in national emergencies and the World Wars. The speakers pointed out that the Center needs a minimum of 600 pints of blood a month for distribution to the 14 counties participating in its program. During the course of the discussion, the speakers answered questions directed to them by members of the club. At the same time, arrangements were made for the Boosters to sponsor the next visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to Hazelwood. The date was set for September 27.

The Boosters were the sponsors of the Bloodmobile's March visit to the Waynesville-Hazelwood area. During other business at the regular session, the members heard a report on the work of the Hazelwood Knee Pants Baseball League which the club is sponsoring for boys ranging from eight to 13 years in age. Rudolph Carswell, president of the club was in charge of the session.

Goods Bring $1,500 At Lions' Auction

Donations from more than 100 Haywood County business firms, professional men, and individuals brought the Waynesville Lions Club approximately $1,500 at its auction last Saturday. As auctioneer Jimmy Mann wielded the gavel at his Waynesville Art Gallery, one watermelon brought the club $9, a 17 1/2 pound country ham sold for $47. Auctioneer Mann bid against himself several times, buying several choice items for substantial sums to help fill the pot for the local service organization. The money will be used to help finance the Waynesville Lions' many charity projects, including the Christmas Cheer fund for needy children. Among the goods Haywood people contributed were five large country hams and a huge assortment of home-canned foods. Contributions came, both in goods and in cash, from firms and individuals in the entire area between Lake Junaluska and Cherokee. Among the heaviest donors, re-

As Others See Us

—very often we become self-centered, and fail to see ourselves as others see us. When such a time comes, it is well to right-about-face and look into the community mirror.

The Iowa 4-H Club young folks this past week looked into that undimmed mirror, and their expressions, and comments about Haywood should give us a deep feeling of gratitude.

Those fine young people saw in the citizens of Haywood, a cooperative people and the very emblem of southern hospitality. Such an appraisal is something all of us should remember, and strive even harder to improve. It is a good reputation.
