day of more than 200 Western North Carolina farmers, health officers, and sportsmen.

The bill is aimed at control of dogs because, the audience agreed, this was the major reason for the decline of this section's sheep industry over the past 20 years.

More specifically, the measure is sought for the control of stray, homeless mongrels, rather than hunting dogs, which are generally under close control during hunts.

Representing Haywood county on the commission are Oral Yates of Iron Duff, as state representative, nominee; and Frank M. Davis, also of Iron Duff, as president of the Haywood-Jackson County Fox Hunters Association.

Mr. Yates said both sportsmen and sheep raisers are interested primarily in a bill that would require the licensing of all dogs in their respective counties.

Every dog owner would be required to pay a small licensing fee and register his pet with the county.

Every dog would be required to wear a collar bearing a tag carrying the name of his owner.

Observers at last Monday's meeting said sportsmen are anxious for such a law to protect their own valuable hunting dogs; sheep owners want it for protection of their animals; and the health officials are interested in it as an aid in the solution of the health problem.

Farm officials point out that Western North Carolina, with its improved pastures, is ideally suited for the development of a profitable sheep business.

Wayne Corpening, Haywood county's farm agent, said after the meeting that this business in this county alone could bring an income of from $100,000 annually or more.

"Sheep," he said, "bring a greater return on the investment than any other type of livestock."

Joe Cline Resigns To Join L and B Hardware Staff

Joe Cline has resigned as assistant county agent. His resignation became effective today.

The announcement was made jointly by County Agent Wayne Corpening and George A. Brown, Jr., chairman of the Haywood board of county commissioners.

Mr. Cline, a native of Shelby, had served three years with the county agent's office, working principally with the 4-H Clubs. He left to join the staff of the L and B Hardware Company of Hazelwood.

He will handle the feed, seed and fertilizer department of the firm.

Mr. Corpening and Mr. Brown both described the young agent's resignation as "a great loss to the county Extension staff."

But, they said, "we know he will make a success in whatever work he enters."

The county agent called Mr. Cline "one of the outstanding young farm agents not only of Haywood county but of North Carolina."

Mr. Cline joined the county staff shortly after he graduated from N. C. State College.

Mr. Corpening said his successor had not yet been chosen, but an appointment was scheduled to be made in the near future.

The appointment of an agent and assistant agent customarily is made by the N. C. State College Extension Service on the recommendation of the county agent and county board of commissioners.

Carolina Library Commission, will have as its purpose the discussion of library service in this area and throughout the state with a view to gaining an over-all picture that will serve to improve this service.

Library trustees, librarians and friends of libraries from the Western counties and towns will be present at these meetings. Miss Margaret Ligon, Librarian, Pack Memorial Library, Asheville will be the leader of the meeting.

Local persons attending will be Miss Margaret Johnston, Mrs. James Atkins, Col. J. H. Howell, Mrs. Lenoir Gwyn, Mr. Wm. Medford and Mr. Glenn Palmer.

Miss Elizabeth House, Director of the N. C. Library Commission, Miss Helen Rex, Field Worker, and Miss Gladys Johnson, Chief Library Assistant, will be present.

Other interested persons from this area are invited to attend one or both of these meetings.

Employ The Handicapped Week Starts

The local observance of National Employ the Handicapped week was launched today with a plea from officials that employers consider the talents, rather than the injuries, of the people they seek for employment.

Local industries and business firms have given their blessings to the observance, along with Waynesville area women's and men's civic organizations.

The Rev. C. L. Hill, assistant pastor of St. John's Church, and the Rev. M. R. Williamson, pastor of the Waynesville Presbyterian church, are scheduled to give a series of radio talks this week in support of this campaign of education regarding the vocational abilities of the handicapped.

The observance will continue through October 7.

Arthur Vieth of the N. C. Employment Service office here, is chairman of the local observance, and Al Whitehead is co-chairman.

Among those working in the campaign are representatives of the Employment Service, Welco Shoe Corp., A. C. Lawrence Leather Co., the Waynesville Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the Waynesville Business and Professional Women's Club, among others.

MORE ABOUT Band

The first band was organized here in 1939, after a group of civic leaders had seen the snappy Spruce Pine band perform at a Fourth of July celebration here. It was sometime later at a football game here with Hendersonville, that a decision was made to buy uniforms for the band. The visiting band attracted much attention, and on the gridiron, the visiting team won, with many fans giving credit to their band.

Before too long, a campaign was launched and uniforms bought for the Waynesville band, together with several of the larger instruments which are in use by the band today.

L. T. New, Jr., was the first band director. He was succeeded by Mrs. Joe Cathey.

Mr. Harvell took over while Mr. Isley was in service, and directed the musicians until Mr. Isley was discharged from the Marine Corps. Last year Robert Campbell was added to the staff as assistant.

The school now has four bands—the beginners, junior band, the marching band, and concert band. The last two bands have sixty members each, and utilize the same uniforms, taking turn with public appearances.

WNC Officers Busy With Safecrackers

Western North Carolina officers are working on at least three cases of safecracking or safe-stealing which have cropped up since last spring.

Still under investigation is the looting of the Ketter's Store safe in early September. The cracksmen got about $71 in cash after ripping the door off the heavy safe.

Last week, thieves broke into the Fontana Drug Store in Fontana Village and carried off a strong box containing approximately $1,500 in cash.

At Murphy a few months ago, however, would-be safecrackers got nothing but the exercise for their hard work after breaking into a wholesale house, they failed to open the big, one-ton safe.

So they decided to take it away to a place where they could blow it and continue their work without fear of disturbance.

They heaved, hauled and pushed the big money box out the loading door of the warehouse.

When the safe hit the street, however, it kept rolling.

The next morning, officers fished it out of ten feet of water in the lake at the end of the street.

Some progress was indicated in the investigation of the Lake Junaluska case, but officers said there was "nothing for publication" right now.
