

Deadline Set For GI Training Bill

The majority of the World War II veterans will not be permitted to start a course of education or training under the GI Bill after July 25, 1951, the Veterans Administration has warned.

The GI Bill provides that generally training must be initiated by July 25, 1951, or four years after a veteran's discharge, whichever is later, and it must be completed by July 25, 1956.

In view of the provisions of the law, the VA has ruled, the only exception to the rule will be those who were discharged after July 25, 1947, and those who enlisted or reenlisted under the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act.

Those veterans who have started and actually are pursuing GI Bill training on that date, however, have the right to continue their courses. Furthermore, the veteran who has started a course and who has continued in it will be considered to be in training even though he has temporarily interrupted the course for the summer vacation or other reasons beyond his control.

Once the veteran completes or discontinues his program of GI Bill training after the 1951 date, he may not start another course.

Veterans who enlisted or reenlisted under the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act (between October 6, 1945, and October 5, 1946) are not bound by the entry or completion deadlines. Instead, they have four years from the end of that enlistment or reenlistment period in which to start, and nine years from that time in which to complete their courses of training.

Cooked dried beans team well with browned chopped onions and canned tomatoes. Season well with salt and pepper and serve very hot sprinkled with parsley. To cut the parsley fine use a kitchen seissors.

Add grated yellow cheese to creamed diced potatoes for a flavor change. Sprinkle with chopped chives or parsley cut fine with a kitchen seissors.

Audio-Visual Service Given By Guidance Clinic

CULLOWHEE, N. C. (Special) —This year the Guidance Clinic is offering its usual Audio-Visual Service which is used to help students read faster and with more comprehension. The clinic also gives tests to detect defects in the student's hearing or vision.

A good part of this work is being carried on by a group of students known as "Projectionists." They are trained in the use of the projectors and films used in the service. Three groups of student teachers are also being trained in this work.

The Clinic has a library of 100 motion pictures, 100 film strips, and a complete reference library on Audio-Visual work.

The Service's Recorder is used by the reading and speech classes in order that each student may listen to and criticize his speech.

Farm Mortgage Interest Down As Other Costs Rise

Alone among the major items in the cost of running the nation's agricultural establishment, aggregate interest charges on the farm mortgage debt have shown a marked decline in recent years and are now at the lowest level on record in relation to cash farm income, according to figures compiled by the U.S. department of agriculture.

This development contrasts sharply with the trend of other farm costs, which have doubled and more in the last decade. It reflects a combination of factors including the big rise in farm income in the period, substantial net mortgage reduction as compared with prewar, and lower interest rates charged by principal farm mortgage lenders among which the life insurance companies are prominent.

Department of agriculture figures show that in 1948, the latest year available, farm mortgage interest charges in the aggregate added up to $229 millions. This was somewhat above the comparable figures for the three preceding years, reflecting an uptrend in aggregate farm mortgage debt in the postwar period, but except for these it was the lowest such total for any year since 1912. In 1939 farm mortgage interest charges exceeded $290 millions, or 25 per cent more than the 1948 figure.

Related to agriculture's earnings, farm mortgage interest charges in 1948 represented only 7.10 of one per cent of cash farm income. This was the same proportion as in 1947 and was the lowest such relationship for the four decades since 1910 for which statistics of this nature have been compiled.

Study Premature Babies An instrument corresponding to a miniature iron lung has been used by University of Michigan researchers in studying premature babies. Object of the studies was to find out why premature babies breathe irregularly—in gasps or jerks. The research has shown that the cause of this irregular breathing is that oxygen is not reaching the tissue of the brain center which controls respiration.
