of blood a week from the Western North Carolina section.

This urgent need, he pointed out, has been aggravated by the current Korean war and the threat of world-wide Communist aggression.

Of the 400 pints needed weekly, he said, 200 are necessary to meet local regional needs, and the remaining 200 are necessary for defense purposes.

The blood to be set aside for defense is needed for the wounded and to add to the stockpile which would be necessary in the event of an atomic bomb attack.

"The amount needed for defense purposes will increase from month to month," he predicted.

This means, Colonel Wright declared, that every healthy man and woman must give a pint of blood four times a year, if the needs of the armed forces, civilian defense, and the local sick and injured are to be met.

Referring to the requirements for blood in the event of an atomic bomb attack, he pointed out that every casualty of atomic radiation requires repeated infusions of blood.

"Radiation cuts off the ability of bones to manufacture blood corpuscles," he explained.

"That means that continued infusions of blood are necessary until the bone is able to resume its function."

The Asheville Regional Center covers 15 Western North Carolina and two northeastern Tennessee counties.

Yesterday's donations brought to 439 the number of pints of blood given the Regional Center during this year by residents of the Waynesville-Hazelwood area.

Faces Death For Double Murder

Curtis Shedd, right, is in the Haywood County jail awaiting his transfer to State Prison's Death Row in Raleigh. He was sentenced to death yesterday in Macon Superior Court for the murder of two little girls near Highlands last August 3. This Mountaineer staff photo shows him signing a confession in the Haywood County Court House shortly after he was brought here following his arrest. The Macon County sheriff is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow to take Shedd to Raleigh. Next to Shedd, left to right, are Solicitor Thad Bryson and SBI Agent P. B. Kitchin.

He made a stab at blowing out the candles.

But he gave it up when one of his whiskers started smoking.

And Zekie, being a well-brought-up cat, doesn't smoke.

The event was marked by dignity on the part of all present, and by a spirit of perfect harmony.

Not a feather was ruffled, nor a hair harmed.

Zekie, full of the dignity of his 16 years, was the perfect host.

Mrs. Fancher said Zekie will get another birthday party, when he becomes 18 years old.

The Pigeon came within less than a foot of its banks just west of Clyde early this morning.

But the road was free of water.

Between Canton and Woodrow, however, the road was reported impassable at one point.

School and work buses were forced to detour.

In Waynesville, several householders found their basements had become miniature swimming pools during the night.

And one garage reported finding its oil storage tank floating placidly on the waters when mechanics reported for work.

Light snow was reported at Soco and Wagon Road Gaps last night, and the Knoxville Journal reported Newfound Gap covered by a three-inch white blanket.

But the skies over Haywood had all but cleared by noon today, and but for the nip in the air, it looked like a day in spring.

sign innovations that make the car appear much longer and lower than any previous model.

The Powerglide automatic transmission, Chevrolet's sensational driving advance, has been refined for the latest models, although remaining fundamentally the same flexible driving control that has already enrolled a quarter of a million satisfied owners. It will again be optional on De Luxe models only.

Fourteen passenger body types are included in the 1951 line. Two- and four-door sedans will be available in Styleline and Fleetline series. All sedans and the sport coupe will come in De Luxe and Special trim. A convertible coupe, all-steel station wagon and the Chevrolet Bel Air, which has scored so sensationally in popularity, are exclusively in the De Luxe series. The business coupe will be available only as a model in the Special series.

tee's recommendations.

Meanwhile, members of the County Board of Education called the committee's work this week "the most thorough survey ever made of the county's schools."

If the voters of Haywood County approve issuance of county bonds, the funds would supplement the state school building money.

The vote of the more than 400 persons who attended the meeting was on a motion based on a resolution adopted that morning by the County Board of Education.

This resolution, Mr. Messer told the audience was that the county's allocation from the state be held in abeyance and that an estimate be made to determine the total cost of putting all the schools into top shape.

He said a county board survey made two years ago showed that the job would cost approximately $1,500,000.

He added, however, that in view of the increase in construction costs since that time, he did not know what the job would cost now.

After the estimate is made, the county board will request the Board of County Commissioners to set the special election.

Then it would be up to the commissioners, working through the county elections board, to call the vote.

The state committee completed its two-day survey late Tuesday afternoon.

Their recommendations were not made public.

Mr. Messer explained that the report would be released for publication by the state board after it had approved the findings Thursday.

The architect not only will determine the total cost of taking care of all the schools.

But he will also make an estimate of the cost of making each improvement at each school.

Mr. Messer said this means that the allocations of the sought-for county school bond issue would be made before the election.

Thus, the voters would know how much money each school would receive to make the needed improvements.

Mr. Messer told the audience he was authorized to present this idea by the County Board of Education.

The second survey of the state committee resulted from a formal protest filed by a group of Haywood County citizens with the State Board of Education.

The protest was against the allocation of the county's share of the state funds for construction of new buildings at Bethel Elementary School and Waynesville Township High School.

The county superintendent explained that these allocations were made because the needs at Bethel and Waynesville had been considered greater than those of any other schools in the county; and that they would serve a greater number of people.

At the same time, he declared, the County Board was "not unmindful of the pressing needs of the other schools in the county."

The plans and specifications for both the projects were ready for submission to bidding when the state board ordered a halt to the projects on the basis of the protest.

At Monday night's meeting, Hershel Harkins of Asheville, attorney for the protesting group, told the committee that the initial survey committee did not obtain a true picture of the situation.

He said this was particularly true in reference to the Spring Hill-Bethel situation.

He explained that a hundred or more students from the Spring Hill community were transported to the Bethel School, that the net effect was to make the Spring Hill School look bad, and Bethel School look good.

Mr. Messer said later that Spring Hill School has two rooms, two teachers, and 70 pupils.

Discussing the overall picture,

MASONS TO ELECT OFFICERS

Waynesville Masonic organizations will meet at 7:30 p. m. Friday to elect officers.

Those scheduled for sessions are Waynesville Chapter 69, Royal Arch Masons; Doric Council 20, Royal and Select Masters; and Waynesville Commandery 31, Knights Templar.

Mr. Messer told the audience: "The entire trouble is there is too much to do and too little to do it with."

"The people want $2,000,000 to do the job. And right now there is only $345,000 available for it."

He then told the group of the county board's resolution.

Ned Tucker made the motion that the citizens sponsor the move, and the vote was taken after it had received several "seconds."

The members of the state committee, with T. C. Robinson, superintendent of Buncombe County Schools, presiding as chairman, reported on the previous surveys made in the county.

The initial survey was made November 10, 1949.

A special survey was made early last October on the situation pertaining to the Spring Hill, Lake Junaluska, and Maggie schools.

The committee for this survey recommended that Rock Hill and Maggie Schools be consolidated, and located "preferably" in the Dellwood area.

It also recommended that the Lake Junaluska School be consolidated with Waynesville.

Sidney Kirk, of the state school-house planning and survey division, said the special survey group had reported that the patrons of these schools had worked vigorously to effect improvements.

However, he added, the conditions prevailing at all three, in the light of anticipated growth of the communities, would forestall their achieving a well-balanced long education program.

The special survey had been made as the result of a protest against the original recommendations contained in the report of the committee which made the survey November 10.

The original report also had recommended consolidation of the three schools.

The other members of the committee which made the county survey this week was H. Dueck, superintendent of Murphy city schools.
