Rotarians saw the second in a series of four films on "The United Nations At Work" at their regular weekly meeting at the Towne House, Friday.

The film, which was in three parts, explained the views of the United States and Russia on control of the atom bomb, described the work of the interpreters, and showed how the food program is carried out for undernourished nations of the world.

The four films, which have been secured by the Dayton Rubber Company, are part of the program arranged by Harry Bourne for the Rotary Club for this month. Ned Tucker was in charge of the projector.

Prior to the showing of the film, Mr. Bourne, as a member of the Rotary Club and finance chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, urged every member of the club to support the Chamber of Commerce so that its work might be carried on successfully.

Richard Barber, Jr. presided at the meeting.

Businessmen Of Haywood Urged To Get Facts On National Production Plan

Hazelwood Fire Truck Answers Its First Call

Hazelwood's new $8,500 fire truck went into action for the first time Friday morning when fire broke out in a truck load of scrap rubber as it was being hauled from Dayton Rubber plant to the Hazelwood rubbish disposal area on Hyatt Creek.

Floyd Shetley, driver of the truck, discovered the flame before reaching the disposal area and notified the Dayton plant which in turn called the Hazelwood Fire Department.

Gene Wyatt, Hazelwood tax collector and a member of the volunteer fire department, in reporting the fire said that no water was available at the scene and the booster tank was used. Before the flame was extinguished the truck was forced to return to Five Points in Hazelwood for more water but damage was kept at a minimum.

According to Wyatt, the new firemen answered their first call like veteran fire fighters. Dr. Robert Turner was still in his dentist's jacket and Hershel Caldwell wore his barber's jacket. Howell Bryson was driver of the truck and other fire fighters included Vinson Gibson, Charles Balentine, Houston Businessmen of Haywood county are cautioned by the Atlanta regional office of the U. S. Department of Commerce that they should become thoroughly familiar with the activities of the Commerce Department's National Production Authority, or they may find themselves in violation of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

Information received here from Merrill C. Lofton, Commerce Department regional director in Atlanta, is to the effect that some 25 or more orders and regulations have been issued by the National Production Authority dealing with many phases of business activity.

Several of the orders issued, Mr. Lofton said, are designed to conserve steel, copper, rubber, aluminum, cobalt and a dozen other materials in short supply for the national program of defense now under way. Others, such as those applicable to inventories and the "hoarding" of important supplies cover a wide range of business operations, he pointed out.

One NPA order establishes a procedure by which defense order ratings are issued, which is the crux of the entire NPA program.

"Our advice to businessmen of Haywood county is that they obtain copies of these NPA orders, regulations and directives, and maintain a file of them for guidance," Mr. Lofton said. "Our office in Atlanta will gladly tell them how to obtain them."

"Also, let me emphasize that it is not necessary for anyone to go to Washington for information regarding the terms, provisions and effects of these orders and regulations. Our Atlanta office is staffed to help them in avoiding this unnecessary trouble and expense."

The address of the Atlanta regional office of the Commerce Department is U. S. Department of Commerce, 418 Atlanta National Building, 50 Whitehall Street, Southwest, Atlanta, he said.

Domestic Rubber Possible

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The only latex-yielding plant which can be grown in this country on a practical scale, and which produces good quality natural rubber, is guayule. If the guayule industry ever gets going in the U. S., two Texans will share much of the credit.

Rep. W. R. (Bob) Poage of Waco was largely responsible for the World War II program in which millions of dollars was spent to plant thousands of acres in the rubber-bearing shrub.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Austin, as head of the new Senate Preparedness Committee, recently urged immediate revival of the guayule program.

Didn't Work Out

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — A former soldier won his divorce here by testifying that "absence failed to make the heart grow fonder." The soldier said he took an overseas assignment in the hope that his wife "would be glad to see me when I came back." He told the judge it didn't work out that way.

Thirty-five vessels are being built in the Ryukyus and 25 in Japan under a program to restore permanently the Ryukyuan fishing fleet.

Elizabeth Taylor Hates Brief Costumes, Making New Movie In One

by Gene Handsaker

HOLLYWOOD — Well, well, Elizabeth Taylor has beautiful legs, too. It takes no crystal ball to predict that in this new international fuff she'll be our soldier boys' No. 1 pin-up girl.

Her studio is unveiling the Taylor gamins in a picture now shooting called "Love Is Better Than Ever". Liz got the usual wolf-whistles her first day on the set in one of the eight barelegged dancing costumes she wears. She plays a dancing teacher. At first she was embarrassed.

"I've always hated my legs"—yes, that's what she told me. "I still do. They're so short and fat." (Oh, Liz, what are you saying!)

"I've always been ashamed of my figure, especially my legs. I never liked to go to the beach in a bathing suit." (Wonder if she was kidding. The sunny thing was, she didn't sound like it.)

Liz didn't know her leg measurements. For connoisseurs of cheesecake, here are my own critical observations: Thighs — streamlined. Knees, — normally knobby. Calves — wow! Ankles — nicely thin.

Liz conceded she was "not quite as fat as I used to be. I've lost 15 pounds since I was married. Still, I guess." We didn't dwell on her broken, eight-month marriage to Hotel Heir Nick Hilton, Jr.

The 18-year-old beauty showed me the scars on her legs that she said were "from being a tomboy. Father used to call me Scar Gams."

Left leg, front, a little below the knee—a long, whitish scar. "I was riding my brother's bike when I was 12 years old. I fell off, and a prong on the pedal went into my leg." A small disfigurement on the left knee: "That happened on the boat over from England when I was 6. I ran into a piece of metal that was sticking out from a trunk."

A scar on her right leg—lamentably, my notes fail to locate it precisely, and I was a bit dazzled by this research—was from falling off her bike into a pile of gravel. She was eight then. Also, when she was 13, she broke her right foot. She was walking through a studio hall enroute to a singing lesson. "Leaping really," Liz said, "and I just tripped over my feet."

Miss Taylor's current co-star, Larry Parks, observed shrewdly: "Usually a gal with a face like that has plano legs. With Liz Taylor, 80 kids, and two dogs in this picture, I'm going to finish a poor eighth."

Lions Club Hears Rev. Mr. Wall

The Rev. Broadus E. Wall, pastor of the First Baptist Church, discussed the ingredients of good character at the regular meeting of the Waynesville Lions Club Thursday night.

Quoting from "The Ladder of Light," by Walker, he said, "No one is great who is not good; goodness is an indispensable ingredient of greatness."

Mr. Wall traced the meaning of the word "character," from the original Greek work meaning "imprint" and gave six essentials of good character as follows: faith in God, truthfulness, honesty, unselfishness, tolerance, and morality.

He discussed the influence good or bad character over children with particular emphasis on the influence of parents upon their children.

Lawrence Leatherwood, president of the club, was in charge of the meeting and John T. Schell was welcomed as a new member.
