Student of the Week

By ANNE BISCHOFF From the portals of Canton High School we meet that ever-popular Dan Matthews.

Dan is a senior this year and we find him taking English IV, Spanish II, Dramatics, and he took band until the end of football season.

Dan was elected as the "most talented boy in the senior class," and it's easy enough to see why. He plays the drums, tympani, or most any percussion instrument; he can sing, dance, and has dramatic talents.

Dan's hobbies are photography, music, and dramatics. Along the photography line he has done some outstanding work. He was usually running up and down the sidelines at football games trying to "get a good shot," and he usually succeeded.

Last fall Dan attended the High School Editors Roundtable at Brenau College in Georgia, where he had a chance to learn some more about photography and to make some grand pictures.

As a member of the Presbyterian Church he is active in the PYF and sings bass in the church choir. Dan, who is 18 years old, is a member of the Dramatics Club, Photo Editor of the "Black Bear," Canton HI's annual, and of "Bear Tracks," the school paper, and is also a hall monitor on the Student Council.

Right now Dan's ambition is trying to master the uke. Next fall he plans to enter Rollins College in Florida.

Dan is a senior for Canton HI to be proud of, and it seems that they are proud of him.
