HERBERT M. REYNOLDS

Herbert M. Reynolds, 52, of the Bethel community died Wednesday morning of a heart attack as he was riding a tractor.

Dr. J. Frank Pate, Haywood County coroner, said Reynolds died from a coronary thrombosis. He said Reynolds was riding on the tractor with J. A. Sisk when Sisk felt his companion slump beside him. Reynolds died immediately, Dr. Pate said.

The men were riding the tractor on the side of the highway on their way to work in a nearby field.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 3 p.m. in Bethel Methodist church. The Rev. Clyde Collins and the Rev. Calvin Bissett will officiate and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Nephews will be pallbearers and nieces will be flower bearers.

The body was taken to the home this morning to await the funeral hour.

Reynolds was a native of Buncombe county and had resided in the Bethel section of Haywood

Governor Scott today urged North Carolinians to join in the observance of "June Dairy Month" and pointed out to the dairy industry its responsibilities and opportunities to render a constructive public service.

"In bringing about a finer appreciation of milk and dairy products in North Carolina," the Governor said, "the dairy industry has an opportunity to help improve our health standards and our financial well-being."

"The State's gross farm income from dairy products in 1950 totaled $86,914,000.00," Governor Scott said. "That is just income to the farmers from dairy foods produced by the 374,000 cows. It does not include the income of dairy plants which processed the more than 768,000,000 lbs. of North Carolina produced milk."

"We are vitally interested in the health and strength of our citizens in our economic welfare and in the national mobilization program. Milk is recognized as being of vital and increasing importance to universal well-being for it is nature's most nearly perfect food."

"The dependence on a single crop which is often customary in North Carolina means single shot gambling. Crop failure proves rather disastrous to the family. Not only does that happen, but apparently we are more concerned with cash income than with the welfare of our children who ought to be drinking more milk at home."

"Dairy Month presents opportunities which should receive attention every month during the year. Dairy farming underlies our hope of progress for it means income the year around and improvement of the soil. As the farmer makes progress, his buying power in the towns and cities increases, thus North Carolinians are interdependent for their health and welfare."

county for 20 years. Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Fannie Buchanan Reynolds; one daughter, Mrs. James Sisk of Bethel; two sons, O. L. of Candler and Alvin of Leicester; and two brothers, H. A. of Sylva, and V. G. of Dillsboro.

Former Waynesville Man Quits College Presidency

B. D. Bunn, former superintendent of Waynesville schools, has just resigned as president of Chowan College. The following story was released from Murfreesboro, home of the college:

Friction between the administration and faculty of Chowan College today brought the resignation of President B. D. Bunn and two members of the school's Executive Committee.

Members of the ruling committee resigning were George Gibbs of Murfreesboro and Marvin Revelle of Conway. Other members are the Rev. R. N. Carroll of Edenton, Dr. W. R. Parker of Woodland and the Rev. Lonnie Sasser of Murfreesboro.

Bunn came here two years ago from Granville County to head the Baptist institution that was closed during World War II and reopened in September, 1949.

Chowan College's Board unanimously accepted Bunn's resignation tendered because of "lack of cooperation."

Center of the friction is Austin Staples, head of the Bible Department, who was reelected to the college faculty by the ruling board after the executive committee had given him only one vote to continue on the faculty.

The trustees over-ruled the committee and retained Staples by a 10-5 vote.

After the school's ruling body accepted Bunn's resignation in a called meeting today, it appointed Walter Evans of Harrellsville, Sasser and Parker to undertake the task of selecting a new president. Today's action brought Bunn's second clash with the Board of Trustees. After being reelected by the Executive Board earlier in the year, the trustees turned down the board's recommendation when the friction with Staples developed.

Bunn was not present at the meeting when faculty members were elected, although it is customary for a college president to be on hand at such procedures, he had offered "several suggestions" that would prompt his declining to submit his resignation. The suggestions were not presented to the board in writing or verbally, however.

Chowan College, with 12 faculty members, had a student body of 142 this year and recently completed its commencement exercises.

The school was reopened after Baptists of Northeastern North Carolina waged an all-out campaign for funds to finance the reopening.

Bunn, who was a school executive before coming here, said he has no immediate plans for the future.
