Sallie Sutton's home is one of scheduled stops for the Poultry tour, Tuesday, July 10.

We were all disappointed when Gov. Scott was unable to be present at the presentation of awards in the recent community development contest. Our roads are getting rougher and rougher and now they are getting full of deep holes, and we would have liked for him to have been on the tour through this community. You can be sure he would have been given an ear full. Now another hazard is added to this condition by the weeds.

Protecting Art
Reproductions of fine art paintings will have a greater depth with one or two thin coats of pure, fresh, white shellac. Many of the fine old paintings are protected with one or more coats of French varnish, a refined wax free shellac.

Herschel Hipps Family Typical Of Achieving Success On A Farm

A progressive and hard-working family is that of G. H. Hipps, chosen by Hominy Community as its Family of the Week. The family consists of Mr. Hipps; his wife, the former Mary Jo Mann; Peggy Jo, who is now Mrs. Clarence H. Morrow, Jr., and is living in Pasadena, Texas; high school students Weaver and Nancy Kay; and grade-schoolers Linda Mae and David Carroll.

The family lives on a 170-acre farm, about a hundred acres of which is devoted to pasture. They have 40 head of cattle, 11 cows and 70 head of sheep. One highly productive acre is their tobacco allotment.

Their major farm income is derived from their beef cattle, sheep and tobacco, and from about 200 apple trees.

Mr. Hipps' executive ability is evident in the way in which he combines two full-time jobs with two more which require real thought and considerable time. Besides the management of his farm,

Mr. Hipps is principal of Erdam School. When students in seven grades, and three buses, get wind up the works and by itself. However, Mr. also chairman of the Hominy Community Development Program has served as superintendent of the Rockwood Sunday School the last 25 years!

Weaver and Nancy attend High School, when in the 10th grade and ninth. Both find a great interest and pleasure in it.

Everyone in the community is urged to attend this meeting and help in the plans to make the section a better place to live. We have a beautiful section of the county here; let's make it more so with attractive signs and mail boxes, etc.

I have received word from several of the boys in service, through their parents, telling us how much they appreciate the Cecil C. D. Program paying for the Waynesville Mountaineer subscriptions. They enjoy getting the "home" news, too.

Revival Services Now Being Held At White Oak

A revival is in progress at the White Oak Pigeon Baptist Church and will last for two weeks. This meeting is under the direction of the Rev. Pete Hicks, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Coleman Brown of Canton. Everyone is invited to come.

Several folks from this community were on hand to represent White Oak at the all-day session of the Community Development Day at the Waynesville High School stadium on July 3. Jane Davis won for herself one of the dollar prizes.

At the night singing White Oak had two of the six entries. Our thanks and appreciation go to the Liberty Four Quartet from the White Oak Liberty Baptist Church; namely, Dorothy Hoglen, Ineva Hoglen, Louise Burgess and Helen Kirkpatrick. Also to the Rose Sisters, Nell and Joan, for their duets. Nell is now Mrs. Yoder Messer. These girls were all in fine voice and received hearty applause from the audience. We were proud of all six of them.

Four of the girls who appeared in the 4-H pictures in last Friday's paper sounded as though they were from Fines Creek. It is true that they are students of the Fines Creek School, but they are members of the White Oak 4-H Club. Another one of our winners, Frances Conard, had left before the pictures were taken, so missed being in them.

YOU CAN'T RAISE A CROP IN THE MIDDLE OF THE RIVER...

... sure you agree — but many farmers continue to let their top soil wash down the bare hill to the river. The top soil — the only thing will grow a crop — is left to the elements.

Top soil needs protection — just as the inside of your house. And once it starts washing, that's a signal for a hurried-up program to catch it before it goes too far.

There are many inexpensive ways of anchoring topsoil in place — your county farm agent will be glad to explain the simple process. Get the facts and keep your soil at home working for you.
